But Astronauts Happy, Ready

'Fear Not Unknown to Us'

From AP-Reuters

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — Astronaut Neil Armstrong said Monday the Apollo 11 crew is "happy and ready to fly" to the moon for man's first walk on the lunar surface.

He said in a televised news conference that "fear is not an unknown emotion to us" but "we really have no fear in launching out on this expedition."

Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins are to blast off for the moon Wednesday. Late Sunday Armstrong and Aldrin are to land on the moon.

The three appeared at an unusual news conference to field questions. A panel of reporters was seated about 15 miles away from their training headquarters. The U.S. space agency is attempting to isolate the space-men as much as possible from the possibility of contamination from human germs.

Armstrong, Apollo commander, said "after a decade of planning, hard work, we are willing and ready to attempt to achieve our national goal" of landing on the moon.

The crew had confidence in its equipment.

"We're happy and ready to fly," Armstrong said.

Asked whether he agreed with an assessment that the Apollo 11 had an 80-per-cent chance of success, Armstrong said: "I think that's a reasonable estimate in terms of accomplishing everything we set out to do."

But he said odds on going to the moon and coming safely back home are "far greater than that."

Aldrin said if the lunar module can land successfully on the moon Monday, the entire mission will have been a success.

This would be true even if he

Space Station Russian Aim?

MOSCOW (UPI)—The unmanned spaceship Luna 15 neared the halfway point on its mysterious mission to the moon Monday three days ahead of Apollo 11's scheduled blastoff. Some doubts were expressed that the Soviet vehicle would try to land.

One main possibility, according to western space observers, was that the Russians were attempting to make Luna 15 the first part of a large orbiting space station for studying the moon and observing stars and planets.

At Cape Kennedy, veteran German rocket scientist Werner von Braun said Monday the Soviet spacecraft should reach the moon Thursday morning — a day after Apollo 11's astronauts blast off.

Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Centre which developed Apollo's Saturn 5 launcher, said a news conference it is a reasonable guess that the Russian probe will attempt to land on the moon, scoop up a soil sample and fly back to Earth.

"We have one more piece of information from NORAD that this seems to be a rather slow trajectory and the landing on the moon is not expected before Thursday morning," he said.

Some observers said Luna 15 was launched Sunday and some unconfirmed reports said two rockets had blown up on the launching pad in attempts to obtain moon soil samples.

Moscow newspapers gave identical front page display Monday to a brief official announcement which said Luna 15 had been launched. There were no published details and the Moscow press made no mention of the preparations for the Apollo 11 launch.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory in England, said however he did not believe Luna 15 would bring back moon soil.

El Salvador Lashes Out With Warplanes, Invaders

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — El Salvadoran warplanes bombed eight Honduran cities and Tegucigalpa International airport Monday and its troops launched a two-pronged invasion into this neighboring Central American republic, Honduras said.

Army headquarters said Salvadoran troops crossed the border at El Poy, striking into the northwestern corner of the nation. Another Salvadoran force was reported moving down the Pan American Highway into the eastern section of the nation.

AIRPORT BOMBED

No reports of casualties or damage were immediately available but Honduran authorities said they expected bases among the civilian populations in the eight provincial towns which they reported came under aerial attack.

Three bombs were dropped on the Tegucigalpa International airport, headquarters of the Honduran air force, by F51 Mustang aircraft, according to the Honduran authorities.

NO PHONES, LIGHTS

Reliable sources said the Honduran army immediately ordered dispatch of combat aircraft to chase the attacking planes and to attack Salvadoran air force installations.

"It was a premeditated and treacherous attack, something like Pearl Harbor," a Honduran spokesman said in Washington. In Mexico City, the Central Telephone Exchange said all telephone communications were out to Honduras and El Salvador and that both countries were without electricity.

A UPI reporter in Tegucigalpa said he could hear bomb explosions as planes flew overhead. The city was immediately blacked out.

The sources said the attack on the Honduran air force base began about 6:30 p.m. when a Salvadoran C-47 appeared at 8,000 feet followed by two fighters.

The outbreak signalled further deterioration in efforts by the foreign minister of Guatemala, Costa Rica and Nicaragua to negotiate the differences between the two nations.

POPULATION PROBLEM

Hostilities between the two small republics have their roots in El Salvador's excess population. El Salvador has 3,100,000 residents and Honduras has 2,500,000 but Honduras has seven times as much land. The excess population has resulted in the migration, without proper documents of thousands of Salvadoreans into neighboring Honduras.

The tension reached a boiling point earlier this month in a series of soccer games between national teams.

Monday night's charges at the OAS were made minutes after the organization's council named a seven-member commission to investigate previous border clashes between the two countries.

The commission went immediately into executive session.

Ra Settles, Lists

From AP-Reuters

OSLO, Norway — Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl told an amateur radio operator Monday the stern section of his reed boat Ra was sinking still deeper and the craft was beginning to list slightly.

The operator said the next two or three days might be decisive for the fate of the voyage on which Heyerdahl is seeking to prove that ancient Egyptians could have crossed the Atlantic in similar vessels.

Flight from Czechoslovakia Stopped

BAYERISCH-EISENSTEIN, Germany (UPI) — A truck carrying Czechoslovak refugees tried to smash through a border crossing into West Germany Monday but was blocked by a steel barrier pole and a hail of machinegun fire.

at least one of the Czechoslovaks was shot and possibly killed. The others were captured.

The West Germans said five persons were in the truck, but the Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported later that seven persons were in the truck. The news agency made no mention of any shooting, stating only that the seven had been detained.

West German guards, alerted by a burst of machinegun fire, watched through binoculars as the truck sped into the cross point area and then crashed to a halt against a truck pole at the barricade. Guards on the Czechoslovak side sprayed the vehicle with machinegun fire as it approached the barrier and crashed.

One of the occupants of the truck was carried off on a stretcher with a blanket covering his face, indicating he was dead. West German guards said. They saw only four others being led away at gunpoint.

Native 'Nitty-Gritty' All Services Continuing

There will be no special services for Canada's native people, but they will not lose the federal services they now get when their affairs are turned over to the provinces.

The comment was made by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, following an hour-long meeting with Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, who is on a cross-Canada tour to explain the federal government's new Indian policy to provincial government and Indian leaders.

Mr. Black said Mr. Chretien had explained the "nitty gritty" of Ottawa's emerging transfer of Indians to provincial jurisdiction.

POLICY AIMS

Mr. Black, who is responsible for Indian matters in B.C., said Mr. Chretien outlined a policy which would leave Indians "the same as any other citizen" but under which special care by the federal government "should not be diminished in any way."

Mr. Chretien was snubbed by the Indian leaders he hoped to meet in Victoria, but said he would meet Indians during later stopovers today and Wednesday at Alert Bay, Vancouver and Kamloops.

He said he was not too surprised at Tsartlip Chief Philip Paul's refusal to meet him in Victoria, because he had already spent some four hours in Ottawa going over the new policy statement with him.

INTERIM MEASURE

The policy, announced June 25 in the House of Commons, would see the Indian Act repealed and legislative steps taken to enable Indians to control their own lands and to acquire title to them. It would also see funds made available for Indian economic development as an interim measure.

While the phasing-out of the department is expected to take five years, it is also expected that the process of transferring land control to the Indians will take longer.

Legislative and constitutional bases of discrimination would be removed and Indians would obtain services through the same channels and agencies as other Canadians, according to the policy statement.

CULTURAL LOSS

Indian leaders have complained that by becoming part of the provincial education system they will lose the cultural advantages of Indian schools. They also say Indian youngsters may be unable to compete in the system, and that there will be more school dropouts.

Some also fear real estate agents and developers will move in to grab land protected previously by the Crown.

While they have agreed with the phasing out of the Indian Act, they have protested that the move is too sudden and too high-handed, with too little protection for those Indians not yet ready for complete integration and self-government.

Vancouver Island Indians voted Saturday to boycott Monday's meeting, after Mr. Paul said he had only a telephone summons at short notice to the meeting.

Mr. Chretien replied Monday, "last week they were angry because I didn't meet them, and now this week they are angry

Trudeau Visit

Indian Almost Crying

By DAVE MCINTOSH

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday that Canadians should not take a dog-in-the-manger attitude toward northern development. (See also Page 31.)

He told a town meeting here that he cannot see what is wrong with the American oil tanker Manhattan trying to find a northwest passage to Alaska this summer.

This is a case of a job being done by a foreign concern or not being done at all he said.

Trudeau said his government is not hostile to foreign capital but that it tries to make sure it operates for the benefit of Canadians.

If Canada wanted to replace foreign capital with its own, savings would have to be enforced and the standard of living lowered.

FORGET, FORGIVE

The prime minister also told a standing-room-only crowd of about 300 in the community hall that Canada cannot survive if it does not forget and forgive a lot of the past.

He was replying to an elderly Indian woman, Mrs. Clara Pratt, who was almost in tears as she said: "All too often our grievances are crumpled up and thrown into the basket."

Trudeau said that in Canadian history whites had taken land from Indians and the English had taken land from the French.

CAN'T EXIST

"But no nation can exist unless it is prepared to forgive a lot of the past."

The prime minister said he hopes the day will come when Indians and Eskimos are equal to all other Canadians.

These groups would not have special protection any longer but they would be equal under the law.

"We should reach a time when there is no treaty between peoples in Canada."

Whites would always discriminate against Indians if the latter continued to rely on special treaty rights, he said.

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) —

A National Harbors Board employee collapsed and died Monday as he waited for Prime Minister Trudeau's arrival to inspect the grain elevators here.

He was identified as Carl Johnson, in his 60s.

As the prime minister walked toward the elevator an ambulance crew was administering oxygen to Johnson on a gravel roadway.

Trudeau said the incident was a shame. Then he turned to a small group of reporters and said:

"Seeing all this press around is enough to give anybody a heart attack."

Rhodesia Strikes Its London Color

LONDON (Reuters)—Rhodesia formally cut its links with Britain Monday when the flag over its mission near Trafalgar Square was lowered for the last time.

A single policeman stood guard at the entrance to the five-storey Rhodesia House as the green and white flag was unceremoniously lowered by a man who appeared briefly on the roof.

And Armstrong were unable to leave the module and collect rock samples. Scientists hope will solve some of the secrets of the solar system.

A successful landing and take-off would solve great problems in advance of future Apollo flights.

Asked whether the word "if" should be used instead of "when" the astronauts walk on the moon, Aldrin said: "I think we are quite able to use the term 'when'."

Armstrong and Collins discounted chances of any interference of the Apollo flight from Luna 15, the unmanned Soviet vehicle now on its way to the moon.

Armstrong and Aldrin are to sleep for four hours on the moon, Armstrong said, however, "I'll be surprised if I'm able to get a sound sleep."

He said "I think that perhaps the highlight for those of us involved will be a successful touchdown (on the moon) and I look forward to that."

Meanwhile, senior space agency officials said that preparations for the Apollo 11 moon landing flight are going well, but cautioned against being surprised if all the objectives of the mission are not successfully accomplished.

George Mueller, associate administrator for manned space flight, told reporters:

"I think we... recognize the seriousness of the mission and that there are very many things which must be accomplished in sequence if we are, in fact, to succeed...."

'PILLS' DENIED

"I trust that none of you will be surprised, and I know all of us will be disappointed, if we are not able to successfully complete the mission."

Asked whether, if the spacemen became stranded, there were any "pills" which they could take to ease their suffering, Mueller answered emphatically:

"There are no suicide capsules or anything of that sort on the vehicle, nor would they plan to take advantage of any such things."

Technicians here are checking everything that can be checked in advance of the liftoff.

Everything was proceeding on schedule for the Apollo 11 blast-off to the moon Wednesday.

Weathermen were examining atmospheric conditions, watching for anything that could delay the scheduled liftoff. Visibility must be at least 3½ miles in the direction of the launch with winds below 33 knots and cloud cover no lower than 300 feet.

French-speaking Canadians wanted a treaty with the rest of Canada. This would mean the division of Canada.

A Metis, Jack Robinson said Indians can get help from the government but that the Metis got no help from anyone.

Trudeau said that this is one of Canada's great problems, because many Canadians did not treat the Metis as equals.

The prime minister spent most of the day in and around Churchill and pressed a red button at the rocket range to fire a weather rocket 220,000 feet into space.

THREE BRIEFS

At the town meeting, first of several on his prairie tour, Trudeau heard three briefs.

A brief from the Churchill Chamber of Commerce requested an increase in grain storage facilities at the port, extension of the shipping season, freight-rate parity, revival of the naval base, expansion of the rocket range and construction of a new hospital.

Trudeau joined in the applause, the loudest of the day, when a questioner suggested that Canada should establish a north-west passage route, not an American ship.

Trudeau said Canada can't do everything itself in the north. The choice was to leave a project undone or let another country do it.

A friendly nation was sending a ship north for research and it would be accompanied by a Canadian ship and Canadian helicopters, Trudeau said.

Trudeau flew to Thompson in the late afternoon where he went 2,000 feet down a nickel mine and also attended another town meeting.

The No. 1 plane has flown 214 hours in 104 flights and is "well along" in its testing, officials said.

Principal aim of the act, according to the minister, was to end discrimination in law which saw all Indian affairs administered by the federal government, while white citizens went to provincial bodies for like services.

Mr. Chretien said the Indian paid the same provincial taxes as his white counterpart and should get the same services.

POLICY WELCOME

Mr. Chretien welcomed the decision of Vancouver Island Indians to draw up an alternative policy of their own.

He pointed out, however, that any policy must be acceptable to other parts of Canada, since federal policy could not be applied on a province-by-province basis.

Mr. Chretien will be in Alert Bay this morning, where he hopes to go out to sea with Indian fishermen. Tonight he will be in Vancouver, leaving Wednesday noon for Kamloops. He returns to Ottawa Thursday.

NDP Chiefs

Basford Judges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford Friday night warned British Columbians against drawing too many parallels between NDP Leader Ed Schreyer of Manitoba and Opposition Leader Tom Berger of B.C.

"Mr. Schreyer is a very moderate NDP man," Mr. Basford said in an interview. "He's totally unlike Mr. Berger. They are just not the same people in philosophy."

"Mr. Schreyer is a reformer just as I am, while Mr. Berger is a left wing, radical person. Don't think because the NDP won in Manitoba you should vote for them in B.C., because they are two different packages."

"As the federal minister responsible for packaging, I say Berger is mispackaged and dangerous for B.C.," said the consumer affairs minister, here to attend the Vancouver sea festival, which opens today.

Mr. Chretien will be in Alert Bay this morning, where he hopes to go out to sea with Indian fishermen. Tonight he will be in Vancouver, leaving Wednesday noon for Kamloops. He returns to Ottawa Thursday.

He said protection of Indian lands from fast-back operators would continue under an Indian Lands Act, which would give Indians the same kind of protection that the Companies Act gives minority shareholders.

Principal aim of the act, according to the minister, was to end discrimination in law which saw all Indian affairs administered by the federal government, while white citizens went to provincial bodies for like services.

Mr. Chretien said the Indian paid the same provincial taxes as his white counterpart and should get the same services.

POLICY WELCOME

Mr. Chretien welcomed the decision of Vancouver Island Indians to draw up an alternative policy of their own.

He pointed out, however, that any policy must be acceptable to other parts of Canada, since federal policy could not be applied on a province-by-province basis.

U.S. May Respond to Lull But New Attacks Likely

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States is actively considering a reciprocal response to the three-week lull in North Vietnamese and Viet Cong military activity in South Vietnam, diplomatic sources said Monday night.

The sources said the Nixon administration believes that such a step might prolong the lull and lead to a continuing series of mutual de-escalatory moves that would reduce U.S. battle casualties and create an atmosphere more conducive to serious peace talks.

NEW ATTACKS

The feeling, according to the sources, is that if the initiative were taken by the United States it would place the onus on Hanoi should the lull be broken.

U.S. intelligence officers have predicted that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces will launch new attacks within the next week, and a high-ranking Viet Cong official has publicly said that a new offensive is being planned.

Burglaries Up In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police Chief John Fisk said efforts to curb the rising number of burglaries here have failed. He said the number of burglaries rose by 22 per cent during the first half of the year, with 3,834 breaking and entering offences from January to June.

But All-Out War 'Unlikely'

Sino-Soviet Tensions Could Easily Explode

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic dispatches from key Communist outposts said Monday Sino-Soviet tensions could easily explode into major border clashes, but all-out war is unlikely.

The strains between Peking and Moscow were said to be reaching extremely dangerous proportions. They are fanned by aggressive propaganda. Military activity, the reports said, is very lively on the frontiers of the 4,500-mile-long Sino-Soviet border, with Russia apparently more active than China in bringing heavy reinforcements of troops, planes and rockets.

The reports warned that the danger of either side "over-acting" in the current tense situation is mounting. But the likelihood of its escalation into all-out war was still rated slender, with both sides aware of the consequences.

The diplomatic reports said the Kremlin appeared in "a state of alarm" which is growing with every new aggressive pronouncement from China.

SOVIET WARNING
The situation was highlighted by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's warning to the Supreme Soviet in Moscow last week that even "our worst enemies have never resorted to such unseemly methods" as the present Chinese leaders.

China, the reports said, now is the Kremlin's openly declared enemy No. 1, just as Russia is the list of China's enemies ahead of the United States.

SOME HARKS
The diplomatic reports said some among Moscow's politicians and military are understood to be quietly advocating a preventive strike against China.

Even moderate Communists are known to have pointed to the danger of mass Chinese population movements along the sensitive border areas. The empty spaces of Siberia are seen as a permanent lure for the Chinese masses.

In the meantime, Chinese Communist troops crossed over the 16,300-foot-high Lipuleth Pass between Tibet and Uttar Pradesh state last Thursday and fired on an Indian patrol of the government-owned All-India Radio reported.

THIEU ANNOUNCEMENT

Allied intelligence also indicated other attacks would occur within a week in Binh Long province, adjacent to Tay Ninh, he said.

President Nguyen Van Thieu said Monday his new election plan for South Vietnam will be proposed formally to the communist delegations Thursday at the next session of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Thieu announced the plan in a nationwide address last Friday, offering the Viet Cong representation on a national election planning committee and places on the ballot if they would end their war against his government and renounce violence. He said they could not campaign as communists but simply as an opposition party.

Thieu called for an international commission to supervise the elections.

ADMISSION

Allied diplomats in Paris said Monday communist rejection of South Vietnam's proposals for free elections would amount to admission that the Viet Cong lacks the popular support it has long claimed.

A Viet Cong statement Friday described Thieu's election plan as "a perfidious manoeuvre" and North Vietnamese statements broadcast during the weekend from Hanoi sounded a similar theme.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials here were disappointed by the initial communist reaction, but said they did not believe the Viet Cong and Hanoi have completely closed the door on the election offer.

Violence Count In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Nearly 10,000 persons died in crimes of violence last year in South Africa, a country of 19,000,000 people. The latest report of the commissioner of police shows 4,249 victims were murdered and another 4,126 died through acts of culpable homicide. Another 972 were killed in assaults and tribal clashes.

Arabs Rounded Up

Shells Cross Suez Again

TEL AVIV (CP) — Israeli and Egyptian artillery fought duels at El Qantara on the northern part of the Suez canal and opposite Suez port in the south Monday, an Israeli military spokesman announced.

There were no Israeli casualties in the firing, the spokesman said.

The bombardments followed firing by both sides during the night, in which one Israeli soldier was wounded.

In the biblical town of Nablus, in occupied Jordan, hundreds of Israeli troops rounded up about 5,000 Arab men in the biggest search for Arab saboteurs the town has ever known. The Arabs squatted under guard in the street until their identities were checked.

No arms were found. About 20 men were arrested on suspicion of being saboteurs and about five were held.

Marxists Rejected In Tokyo

TOKYO (UPI) — Tokyo voters have decisively rejected the bid by Japan's Marxist parties for control of the world's largest city, returns from the metropolitan assembly election showed Monday.

The Liberal Democratic party, business-oriented and friendly toward America, surged ahead in early returns, and had an outside chance to win a majority of the 126 seats in the legislative branch of the city government.

With 73 of the 126 city assembly races decided, the LDP had eked up 33 victories, and its candidates were running ahead in many undecided contests.

Vermont Senator

Safeguard Gets More Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Winston Prouty announced Monday he will support deployment of a Safeguard anti-missile system, thus giving President Nixon a fighting chance to win Senate approval of the controversial proposal.

The Vermont Republican's decision to back Nixon left senators John Williams (Rep. Del.) and Thomas McIntyre (Dem. N.H.) as the only uncommitted members.

The proposal calls for establishment of anti-missiles near the Canadian border in North Dakota and Montana.

The latest Associated Press roundup indicates 49 senators oppose deployment and 49 favor it.

Earlier AP headcounts included McIntyre among opponents but he insists now that he is uncommitted on the final vote even though he has offered an amendment, for deployment of radars and computers but not missiles, which the administration thus far has declined to accept.

Rumor Tries To Pick Up The Pieces

ROME (Reuters) — Premier Mariano Rumor Monday started piecing together a new coalition government in Italy's most vexing government crisis since the Second World War.

Rumor, whose government fell apart eight days ago, described his task as "very difficult." He said he accepted the mandate from President Giuseppe Saragat with reservation.

Rumor's coalition government, dominated by the Christian Democratic party, resigned after only six months in power. Its collapse came because of a split in the Socialist party—a coalition partner—over the role of the powerful Communist party in the country's political life.

Bastille Day Celebrated

PARIS (Reuters) — A huge military parade Monday swept down the Champs Elysee to mark Bastille Day. Crowds up to 12 deep lined the famous boulevard in the centre of Paris.

President Georges Pompidou took the salute in his first Bastille Day parade since he was elected.

The World Watches

AN AUDIENCE of incalculable millions around the world will watch the space spectacular, commencing tomorrow morning, in which three American astronauts will be the principal performers.

But for all its drama, and the inevitable risks involved, this is a coolly calculated scientific enterprise, with tremendous implications of achievement still to come.

It is, in a sense, an end and a beginning. It is the culmination of an eight-year program to land men on the moon. But it opens the way to even deeper space penetration and exploration where men, like Ulysses, will "follow knowledge like a sinking star, beyond the utmost bound of human thought."

Pope Paul spoke of the lunar flight in these words: "Science and technique manifest themselves in such an incomparable and audacious way as to make the peak of their conquests and to allow for the forecast of more conquests of which the imagination fails to dream now."

However significant the scientific aspects of the voyage, it is the adventure itself and the courage of the three who accept with equanimity the dangers that are a part of their profession which excite the public. And, of course, it is the prospect of an historic achievement by their countrymen which is drawing more than a million Americans to watch the blast-off of the monstrous Saturn rocket which will carry its passengers into space.

Elsewhere around the world, where national pride has nothing whatever to do with it, more millions will follow the astronauts' breathtaking evolutions with equal excitement, sympathy and hope for success.

It may be something of a break with military tradition that the commander of this expedition, Neil Armstrong, has elected to leave the mother-ship and to take the first steps on the moon. But tradition can scarcely concern him or his companions. And it may be that, as a civilian, he feels that he is negating any military emphasis on the enterprise.

It is true that rivalries between the United States and Soviet Union space organizations have spurred their endeavors, but that is not to say that international collaboration could not accomplish as much, or even more.

It is permissible to hope that, with the success of this strictly American expedition, the whole world of science will be encouraged to draw closer while it seeks new and farther goals... goals that are productive rather than destructive, and an inspiration for the future of mankind.

Unforeseen Problems

THE TRUDEAU GOVERNMENT'S amendments to the Criminal Code might well lead to problems so far unforeseen by Ottawa but now being faced by the British government — particularly in the field of legalized abortion.

Despite the fact that the British Abortion Act preceded the Canadian act by several months it is still a matter for lively debate, confusion and misinterpretation throughout Britain.

As recently as last week Mr. Crossman, secretary of state for social services, had occasion to warn in the House of Commons that he would take "a very grave view" of people coming from abroad for abortions.

He reported to the House that he had caused an investigation to be made of rumors to the effect that charter flights were now being organized to bring to Britain women and girls wanting abortions.

In answer to questions he said he believed this to be unlikely and that he had no evidence at present "on this kind of mass immigration."

Triggering the debate were several reports in the British and European press that 30,000 Scandinavian women were planning to come to Britain this year for abortions. The British Abortion Law Reform Society also issued a condemnation of a Danish organization, Individual and Society, which it says has sent 200 women to Britain for abortions in the past three weeks.

Mrs. Diane Munday, secretary of the British society, said that the Danish organization was bringing the British law into disrepute and creating an atmosphere of hysteria. She also added that stories about London becoming the abortion capital of the world were wildly exaggerated — inasmuch that abortions performed on women from overseas accounted for only 7 per cent of the total operations in the first quarter of this year.

It would be interesting to know if Ottawa has considered this aspect of Canada's new law respecting abortion and whether it views it with approval or disapproval.

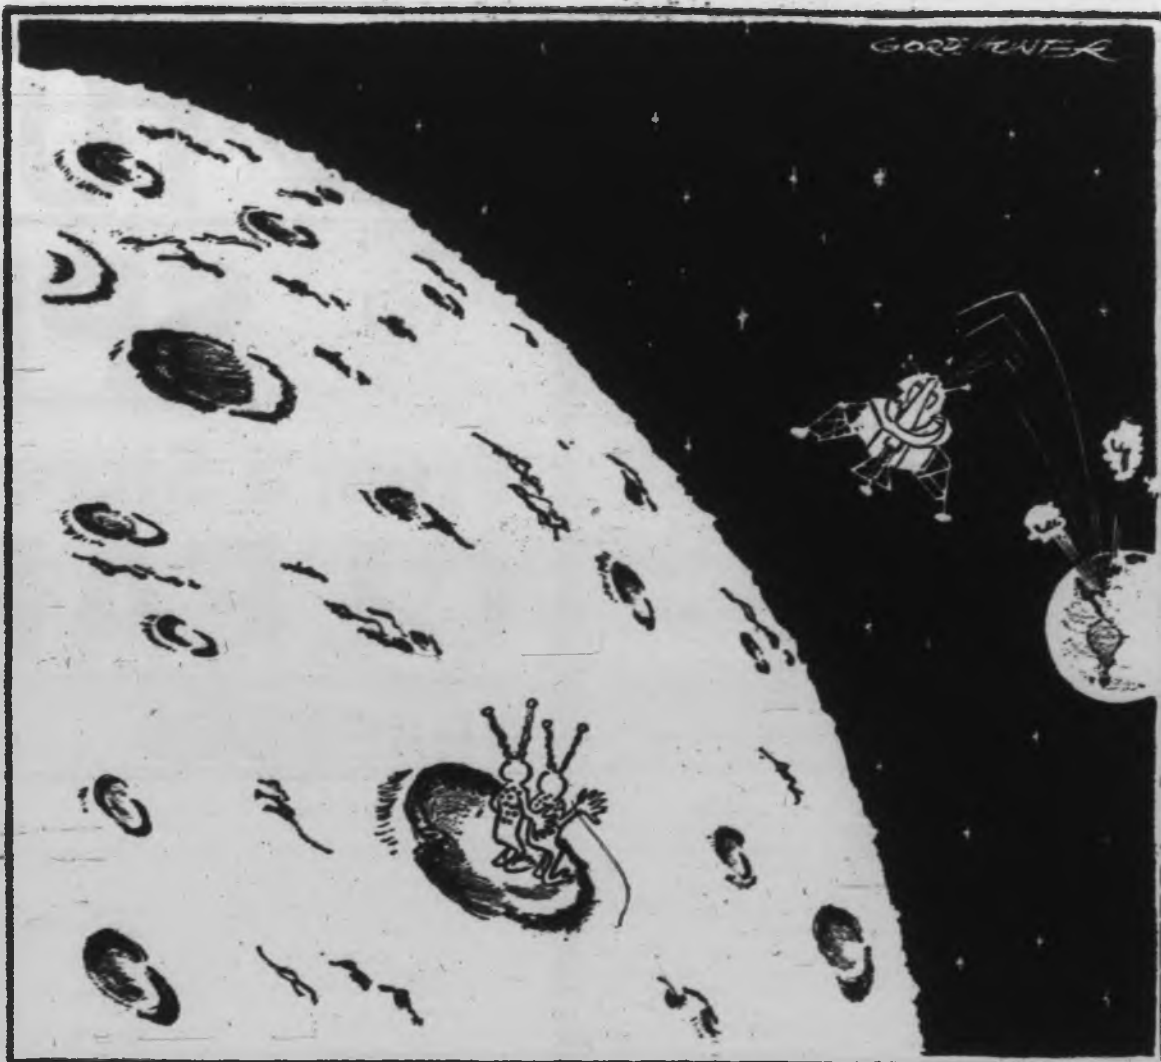

Victoria's Smoke

VICTORIA'S Alderman Clyde Savage can be sure of public applause and support for his demand for further action to clear the city's air. The smoke that hangs over the city, the alderman says, is a terrible condition and he doesn't know what the tourists think when they arrive at the outskirts of beautiful Victoria. But it's not from the point of view of tourism alone that the smoke matters. The detriment to residents, particularly those in the path of the smoke as it is carried along by the prevailing winds, is even more to be considered.

The chairman of the city's smoke abatement committee says the inspector reports B.C. Forest Products operating within the terms of the air-pollution bylaw, and no doubt it is. The smoke is not dark nor dense and the fallout of ash obviously has been greatly reduced by the remedial measures the company has taken in recent years, at considerable expense.

Nevertheless it frequently spreads — at low level and objectionable strength — far enough to the northeast to offend thousands of people, not only in Victoria but across Saanich, too.

The mayor and council of the latter municipality normally would be commended for not butting in on Victoria affairs, but in this instance there is no reason at all why they should not — in defence of their own taxpayers — officially urge on the Victoria council that it look for a way to make its air pollution bylaw of further effect.

"Next it will be juke boxes and cola machine—there goes th' old neighborhood..."

Ottawa Offbeat

What Do the Committees Achieve?

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

THINK hard now—can you recall anything that any committee of the Commons actually has accomplished?

Anything at all that made any kind of lasting impact on your life as you live it?

Give up? Most people do. For trying to remember what any committee of the Commons has done in the hard line of solid achievement — like changing the government's mind on taxing and spending — is to attempt remembering the non-existent.

Sure, committees file reports from time to time with recommendations. But most of the time, the government already has made up its mind on any controversial question at issue, and all the committee does, really, is simply go through the motions of appearing important to the parliamentary process.

Appearances, though, are essential to Parliament's image. Because the Commons, in its recent stormy six years of ever-uncertain minority government, thought the idea that the committee could often perform many parliamentary tasks as well, and even better than the House itself.

Former Prime Minister Pearson was the spokesman.

It was a bill of mislabelled goods he unloaded in this upgrading, this elevation to heady heights of non-power of the committee.

It was, in fact, a cleverly-packaged process to take the heat and public spotlight off his always hard-pressed minority government in the House by side-tracking hotly controversial issues to this committee or that for a slow cooling off.

Royal commissions serve the same purpose, except that they deep-freeze burning questions for years.

There are now 24 committees with an average MP membership of 20, with the government majority, of course, as it now is in the Commons, in firm control.

Quick now, what has any one of these committees done?

Well, there was the Commons defence committee that toured Europe to determine whether or not Canada would be wise to "phase out," as the pat phrase goes, of NATO.

Trouble was that Prime Minister Trudeau reached a decision before the committee scarcely could make it home, much less write its report.

Then there was that special committee assigned to recommending whether the government should increase the pensions of retired federal civil servants, more than 5,000 of whom have been scratching along on less than $30 monthly.

The committee filed an urgent report that in humanity's name — not to mention the government's own reputation as a supposedly model employer — a pension increase was an emergency matter.

That was three years ago. And there are civil servants — at last count 2,156 of them — still scripping by on less than $20 (that's right, $20) monthly.

Aw, but then you've heard that the public accounts committee is different, that it gets things done.

For years, Auditor General Maxwell Haddon has been telling it about those wives of CFHQ brass hats who do their shopping and send their children to school in staff cars.

Routinely the committee has taken solemn note, filed reports demanding an end to this and that extravagance — this year the AG listed 319 instances of waste of public funds — and the "Colonel's Lady" whose husband commands or sails or flies at a desk at Defence Headquarters, still does her shopping in staff cars.

If there was a star on the committee stage these last few months it has to have been the Commons committee on broadcasting, films and the arts.

It took out in full cry after the $46,000,000 cost of the National Centre for the Performing Arts.

It questioned everyone in sight at this incredible centre as to how come the cost has zoomed from an initially estimated $8,000,000 to almost six times that amount. And the only answer it got was "Don't ask me."

Then it wanted to know why the Company of Young Canadians had overspent its budget by $100,000, and was told in effect to "butt out."

Curious as to why separatists and anarchists got Canada Council grants, it was lectured on political tolerance and coolly informed that anyone, Communist included, could qualify for a share of the tax loot.

Committees? They can make you laugh or cry.

Yugoslavia's Socialism

By ERIC METTLER, of Neue Zürcher Zeitung

FROM New Belgrade a sleek skyscraper towers commandingly above the old part of the Yugoslav capital. Its modern offices house the party presidium and executive bureau, organs which are known elsewhere as the central committee and politburo.

There are two striking elements in conversations with functionaries of this centre of power, as well as with responsible Yugoslav Communists in individual republics which comprise this federation. They speak with decided emphasis about the threat posed to their country by the Soviet Union, and openly about the problems of their nation's internal development.

In Belgrade the danger of Soviet intervention against Yugoslavia is still regarded as real. It is pointed out that the current Kremlin leaders are unpredictable. They are ominously avoiding any confirmation of the joint declarations of 1955 and 1956, in which Khrushchev and Tito hammered out an agreement on peaceful co-existence; they have also steadfastly refused to define which socialist countries are to be affected by the Brezhnev Doctrine of limited sovereignty.

The Yugoslav leadership has made provision for any eventualities.

Following the Soviet attack on Czechoslovakia the Kremlin was explicitly informed that an attack against Yugoslavia would mean a "second Vietnam" in the mountains of Bosnia. High-ranking military officers were ordered because their defensive plans were oriented toward the West rather than the East. A popular militia was organized and equipped with anti-tank weapons stored in factories and villages.

Against this background of preparedness, Tito recently urged the Soviets to again open talks on achieving a modus vivendi, but this far without success.

Travelling through the Yugoslav federation today and comparing its circumstances with that of other East European lands or even with the Soviet Union, it is easy to see why at any rate, subsidies became scarce, with factories and other enterprises being faced by the necessity of earning their working capital. In the nationalized industries many political veterans of the partisan era had to make way for younger experts. The free enterprise sector was legally expanded and now shows an apparently unstoppable tendency to infiltrate and expand further. Wherever at least partial economic freedom has been granted, new life is springing from collectivist rigidity and, at the same time, new points of friction arise between old and new.

The Soviet press has remarked that Yugoslavia is already showing the shadow side of its capitalistic deviation: unemployment and prostitution. Last year Belgrade students also criticized the privileges enjoyed by a "Red bourgeoisie."

But there is no denying the fact that today every subject of the East bloc looks with longing and envy at the situation in Yugoslavia, where workers and small farmers have achieved a living standard and a degree of political participation which is rare in other East European countries, not to mention the Soviet Union.

A recent situation pointedly illustrated that the decisive power in this country remains in the hands of the party. Certain powerful figures in various regional governments such as the "liberal" Bakaritsch in Zagreb, refused to take up posts in the federal government in Belgrade. But when the call came for them to take their positions in the newly created executive bureau, the highest party organ, they came without hesitation.

Tito's way is both unique and noteworthy. It is said that the main thoroughfare leading into New Belgrade is flanked on the left by Lenin Boulevard and on the right by a Kennedy Avenue. The story goes that Kossygin once came on a visit and ordered his driver: "Drive left!" President Johnson, on the other hand, told his driver: "Go right!" But Tito's orders were: "Signal left and drive right."

In point of fact the aging partisan leader, who has become a national symbol, has often pointed to the left, immediately after his break with Stalin and even later, not merely out of peasant shyness but also out of the conviction of an old-line Communist. At the same time he is realistic enough to permit himself to be moved by developments which appeal to his people because they bring breathing space and prosperity.

Just as medieval monarchs moved from one palace to another, Tito lives alternately in his various residences, which are pointed out to the tourists from the distance, with a mixture of affection and shyness, at many lovely spots in this variegated land. He lives and lets live. And his countrymen, having finally escaped the horrors of war and revolution, conspiracy, terror and travel, hope sincerely that the fates will protect him for a long time to come.

A Flag for Space

THERE have been differences of opinion over the question whether the American flag or the United Nations flag should be planted on the moon. America being the leading power in space exploration and the space program being widely regarded as the venture of collective mankind, both ideas have their merit.

Now that for the first time in history man can see the earth as one unit, as a planet among others as a star in space, now that humanity is reaching maturity, and being at the threshold of a new era, the ideal of a "United World" for which the United Nations has laid the foundation on the point of becoming a reality, the time has come to adopt a new banner for the world and for the use in space.

The new world flag — the only appropriate one — would consist of a star of gold on a field of blue.

Canada and NATO

As a Canadian and a student over many years of international affairs, let me proclaim that I am thoroughly ashamed of the policy that the present government is pursuing with respect to NATO. Disguising it with as much metaphysical mystery as we may, the brutal fact remains that we are weakening the whole structure and betraying our friends and allies.

It is not a matter of the actual power of the Canadian forces overseas but of the symbolical quality. Mr. Trudeau seems determined to destroy the symbol. He gives aid and comfort to those who might tomorrow be our enemies. Mr. Cadieux' attitude stands out in honorable contrast.

Why do I put it so strongly? There are a dozen reasons. In the first place, our forces overseas, small though they may be, ensure that an attack on them would draw in all the rest — even the French. In the second place, the solidarity of "the West" is just as necessary as it ever was. It is idle to talk of "detente." If Mr. Trudeau knew his European history as a man of his attainments should, he would know something about: (1) the nature of empire; (2) the course of Russian expansion. I am no "red-baiter" and it has always seemed to me that the form of government under which Russians live is their own business, not ours. I do not take my stand upon anti-communism. The brute fact that we have to face is not communism, but Russian power.

If Mr. Trudeau will review his Russian history, he will learn that it commits mainly in the story of Russian expansion from the ancient centre of the principality of Moscow. That process of expansion has been continuous during the last six hundred years. It would be impossible to trace it here in detail, but let us remember that Peter the Great reached the Baltic, Catherine reached the Black Sea, other Czars reached farther. Let us remember that the largest single component of British (and French) foreign policy from about 1825 until recent years consisted in an attempt to keep the Russians away from the Dardanelles, away from the Persian Gulf, away from Afghanistan. Let us remember, too, the annexation of Poland in the eighteenth century, the disintegration of the Austro-Hungarian empire, that bastion against the East, and particularly, the "great leap forward" at the close of the war, when much of western Europe fell to Russia. Let us remember the recent conquest of Czechoslovakia — and without the loss of a single life!

How would Trudeau and Sharp like to have the Russians on the Atlantic coast of Europe? We would look rather funny, would we not, with an unfriendly coastline presented to us on the other side there? Yet, sooner or later, this glacier-like expansion, unless it can be checked, may well bring Russia to the Atlantic, incorporating Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium, and even Germany. If these ministers are statesmen, they will know, or should know, that movements of imperial powers cannot be measured in years. They cannot be measured in decades, possibly not even in centuries. I do not blame the glacier. I do blame those who do not know a glacier when they see it. All imperial powers are glaciers and it takes an enormous amount of persistence to check them in their course.

In this respect, Russia is no different in her expansion (though more successful) than was Great Britain, and no different from the United States. This glacier alongside which we live, however, does not present to us the dismaying possibilities of the Russian glacier. It will take the combined, prolonged and perpetual efforts of the West over an unforeseeable period of the future to stop or divert the Russian glacier.

And here is Canada short-sightedly sabotaging the efforts of her friends. I hang my head in shame. Men can afford to be grand western allies against the most obvious of dangers are no true liberals, for they are helping to betray freedom.

Fruits of Loyalty

In the July 6 Colonist a lady talks of the flag. "It takes many years and lives to make a flag," she says, and "sacrifice, dedication, loyalty, memories, etc." and then she asks, "Will the younger generation build a tradition of loyalty, love and honor for the flag?"

If the younger generation look around, and a great many are doing just that, they will see the dreadful plight of so many of the older generation who gave loyalty, etc., and some gave parts of their bodies only to return to a country "fit for heroes to live in" on miserable pensions in old crumbling houses surrounded by comfort and ease in one of the richest countries in the world, none of which they can afford to partake of. It follows that when the younger generation sees the fruits of loyalty, etc., they may well decide to have no part of it. They are not as easily fooled as we were.

Bamberton Example

I would like to toss a large bouquet to Ocean Cement for their recent action in "anti-pollution" at the Bamberton plant. For those of short memory, that was the scene of the "white blight" on the Malahat. Since the installation of the stack scrubber, the difference in the "before" and "after" picture is absolutely astounding, especially when viewed from the Brentwood Bay side of the inlet! Considering that (1) the local public outcry had been much less vocal than in Victoria (2) the fallout had been primarily on their own (Ocean Cement) property, and (3) the air pollution was more an eyesore than anything else, Ocean Cement deserves much more public applause than I have heard so far.

Now, if the rest of the air-pollutionists would only follow their example — and this includes all our righteous residents, who insist that any restrictions on their continued practice of allowing wet, green garden waste, papers, and general garbage to smoulder for hours is an infringement of their basic "right to burn!" Somehow, I believe one's "right to breathe" comes first!

Perhaps we should insist on a charge for burning permits, with the proceeds donated to various "respiratory disease" clinics. And anti-pollution societies. Then, at least, those who insist on choking us to death would contribute directly to assisting our cure!

Kittens' Fate

With reference to a recent article in your paper re abandoned kittens or puppies taken into the home only a few months previously as playthings for the children, with no thought of the responsibility involved or the inevitable outcome. Cats are the worst sufferers due to their numbers, yet the solution is a simple one. If the cats are neutered, if not, only one kitten in a litter should be kept and the others humanely disposed of at birth by a humane society or veterinarian.

YUGAN beings, it appears, can only stand so much.

Consider the behavior of the residents of Ogobosho, Nigeria. Recently they arose in anger against their local king, Olajide Olajode, and the men who advised him.

They beheaded the king. They killed five of his chiefs. They killed one of his wives and one of his sons.

The villagers were rebelling against what they deemed to be the injustices of government. In particular, they were rebelling against high taxes.

There seems to be a message here.

They'll Be on Moon by Accident

By GERALD LEACH
Of the London Observer

When the three Americans ride up to the moon and immortality next week they will be carried on the crest of the most astonishing flood of concentrated human effort the world has ever known.

Measure it how you like—5,600,000 parts in the rocket and spacecraft; 5,000 men just for countdown; computers that plot every moment of flight to a second; millions of team-hours of sweat and thought; $24,000,000,000—it is this awesome wave of focused energy and purpose that is the real miracle of the trip. Though it seems ungracious to say so just now, the astronauts are mere corks bobbing on its surface—soon to be tossed onto the lunar beach.

Yet, ironically, this huge pulse of energy was largely unleashed by a single speech by a harassed, exhausted man reacting to an extraordinary series of events he could not control. No other vast national enterprise has ever been launched with such a large element of chance, or with so little calm deliberation.

The first tug of the dice was in October 1957 when the flight of Sputnik I—followed a month later by Sputnik II with the dog Laika aboard—struck America like a thunderbolt.

Overnight supreme confidence in America's military and technological superiority turned to deep anxiety. The Eisenhower administration, which had just proved it was rather cool on space by postponing the launch of the grapefruit-sized Vanguard satellite, suddenly came under strong pressure to produce.

As a result, the civilian space agency (NASA) was born a few months later and set to coordinate space plans. These were already quite ambitious: as early as December 1957, Werner von Braun's team had sketched out a 1,500,000-pound thrust booster, the basis of today's Saturn V rocket, and the Mercury program of one-man orbital flights was on the drawing board.

But they were held in check by tight budgets and, more important, by a master plan for going into space devised by the president's high-level science adviser committee.

This was the first considered statement of space policy, and it put manned landings on the moon well down in the timetable among many other ways of exploring space for peaceful purposes. Its whole aim was an orderly, measured march into space within the context of a balanced national scientific effort.

NASA more or less agreed, and in 1960 revealed its 10-year space plan, including a manned moon landing in the early 1970s.

But some powerful voices were beginning to dissent. Spurred by fears of a Russian lead in military missiles and by a Pentagon doctrine that missiles on the moon could dominate the world, the powerful House Committee on Science and Astronautics pronounced that NASA's program "doesn't go far enough."

It is now known that both fears were completely unjustified: the missile gap was a myth and the Pentagon dream a strategic nonsense. Yet they both played a leading part in the Nixon-Kennedy presidential campaign at the end of 1960.

Both candidates called for a speed-up in space (Nixon stressing the military side, Kennedy the peaceful use) but at this stage Kennedy clearly wanted an orderly and "elastic" advance—in line with the Eisenhower administration's thinking and that of nearly all scientists.

Around this time came two further demands not to rush to the moon. Just before he left office, President Eisenhower's commission on national goals warned against being "driven by nationalistic competition into extravagant programs which would divert funds and talents from programs of equal or greater importance."

"Hello, Mission Control?"

And one of the first documents that the newly-elected Kennedy found on his desk was a thorough critique of space priorities by a committee headed by his top science adviser, Jerome Weisner.

While recommending a boost in the military missile field, Weisner's committee urged that the Mercury man-in-orbit program should be downgraded as it "exaggerates" one side of space activity.

This report was at the back of everyone's mind when on March 22 and 23, 1961—just two months before Kennedy made his historic speech in Congress calling for a crash program to get a man on the moon and back within a decade—there was a key meeting to decide the new administration's space funding.

The president attended part of it, and though he urged that America must take first place in big space projects, by and large the experts took little notice.

The meeting decided to go ahead with an expanded rocket program, which culminated in Saturn V, and to defer decisions about the Apollo moon landing program for a more comprehensive review.

Soon after, another high-level report—this time from the National Academy of Sciences—urged that exploration of the moon and planets should be the ultimate objective of the U.S. space program. It said that manned expeditions should play a big part. But it rejected any idea of crash programs.

Then a second thunderbolt struck American confidence. On April 12, 1961, the Russians lobbed Yuri Gagarin into orbit to become the first man in space. At a press conference the same day, Kennedy again voiced his impatience at being "second to Russia in the space field."

It must have been a particularly galling moment—for the first American man-in-space shot (though not as dramatic as Gagarin's flight) was scheduled for a few weeks ahead.

But there was also another venture in the offing. A week after Gagarin's flight the American-supported invasion of Cuba, which ended in the Bay of Pigs fiasco, took place. To the new president, the Cold War suddenly turned very chilly.

He reacted immediately. On 20 April, he directed Vice-President Johnson to find out which space activity gave the U.S. a good chance of getting ahead of Russia, and how much it would cost.

The next day he told the press what he had done: "We have to consider whether there is any program now, regardless of its cost, which offers us hope of being pioneers in a space project... If we can get to the moon before the Russians, we should."

The mood was changing. When Johnson talked to the key space advisers he dug out of them a prediction that while the Russians could probably send men round the moon first, both sides needed a new generation of rockets to land a man. America was developing them, so the top prize of a "man on the moon" could still be won.

Johnson also sounded out a small handful of leading communications and businessmen for their reactions and received a vigorous yes. The military agreed it might be technically feasible. Then, before there was time for any wider soundings to be made, Alan Shepard was put into a sub-orbital 15-minute flight down the Atlantic.

Shepard's flight on May 5 was a technical success and America gave it a tumultuous ovation. But it probably came too late to affect events much.

At the weekend of May 6 and 7 a top-level meeting between NASA and the department of defence recommended that next year's NASA budget should be increased by $549,000,000, while in the first weeks of May the House Science and Astronautics Committee recommended that the total space budget should be increased by $1,418,000,000—$130,000,000 more than the administration had asked for.

The ground was well and truly prepared for Kennedy's speech on May 21. But it was that speech which unequivocally chose the moon landing as the major commitment and which set the date—"within the decade." After it, there was no turning back.

'Moon' Post Office Busy

From LAT — Aboard USS Hornet

More than 230,000 requests from stamp collectors for first-day covers and cancellations are pouring into the post office aboard the Hornet from all over the world. Philatelists are sending stamped, self-addressed envelopes for marking with a commemorative cachet noting the Apollo 11 astronauts' return to earth after landing on the moon.

The Hornet will probably cancel more letters the day of the Apollo 11 splashdown than have ever been cancelled aboard a ship on a single day in history.

Requests for the Hornet's postmark and special hand stamp have been coming in for weeks. Stamp collectors regard an envelope cancelled on the Hornet the day the moon astronauts came back as something like getting a letter canceled on the Nina the day Columbus returned from his voyage to the new world.

Although the Hornet left Pearl Harbor last Saturday, mail to be delivered to and dispatched from the ship intermittently on mail planes.

The Apollo 11 recovery ship is sailing to a point in the Pacific 1,833 miles southwest of Honolulu, for the July 24 splashdown.

Envelopes from stamp collectors are jammed into orange nylon mail sacks stacked in corners of the post-sized ship's post office. They are addressed to Ethiopia, the Soviet Union, Romania, Canada, Luxembourg, France, Spain, Czechoslovakia, Britain, Germany and scores of other countries, as well as cities and small towns across America.

Among envelopes sent in for the special first-day covers are six signed on the outside by moon astronaut Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin A. Aldrin Jr., and Michael Collins.

Crises in Midst of Affluence

Politics Italian-Style

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Rome

"God gave Italy the gift of gab," the novelist Ignazio Silone once wrote. And the current cabinet crisis here in Rome is a political expression of the continuing Italian disposition to think of themselves and their country as comic opera stuff.

For the fact is that economic and social developments have made Italy a modern nation with major responsibilities in the world. But the Italian political class, not yet abreast of what has happened, is still playing games as if it didn't matter.

To an occasional visitor, such as this columnist, Italy's recent progress is staggering. Almost overnight, the country has moved from a predominantly agricultural — over 60 per cent of the population on the farms at the end of the war — to a mainly industrial nation.

Italy's gross national product is not much below that of France and Britain. Some of its firms — notable the Fiat combine of Turin — lead the way in Europe. Its financial leaders — notably Guido Carli of the Bank of Italy — are among the most influential in the world.

Even the age-old problem of the Italian south seems on its way to being solved by a combination of local development and out-migration to the factories of Lombardy and Piedmont in the north of Italy. In this connection, the bloody demonstrations of July 3-4 in Turin were a mark of progress.

For the trouble came not from the Communist Party and its faithful among the highly skilled workers in the Fiat plant. The trouble came from unskilled workers brought up from the south who were protesting over the head of the Communist Party against inadequate housing.

The appropriate political mix for this situation is a left-centre government, disposed towards the reforms required by rapid economic growth but solidly based in the Italian middle class in a way that keeps the Communists out.

After a very long transition period at the turn of the decade, just such a government was put together through a coalition of Christian Democrats and Socialists.

The left-centre governments — first under Prime Minister Aldo Moro and more recently under Prime Minister Mario Rumor — have been reasonably effective.

Signor Moro weathered a major recession and then drove through a program for regional reform. Signor Rumor has prepared far-reaching programs for tax and educational reform.

Except for the Communists, however, Italy's political parties do not fit the modern model of large numbers of like-minded men banded together to seek office and relatively coherent policies.

The Italian parties are aggregations of local notables, widely divergent in outlook, who get together on an occasional basis to maximize personal influence.

The two leading figures of the Rumor government in particular were subject to attack from within their own ranks.

Within his Christian Democratic party, Prime Minister Rumor was constantly being challenged by a left wing under former prime minister Moro.

In the Socialist party Foreign Minister Pietro Nenni was under constant pressure from a right wing led by Italy's president, Giuseppe Saragat.

At recent party conventions, Prime Minister Rumor was barely able to maintain his majority among the Democrats. Foreign Minister Nenni was not able to maintain his majority among the Socialists.

A group of right-wing Socialists loyal to Signor Saragat quit the party. Their defection put the Rumor regime in a minority and it resigned 10 days ago.

The final outcome of the present crisis is not clear. Severe dislocation, and maybe even early elections, cannot be entirely excluded. But a far more placid upshot seems much more likely.

The probability is that there will be a new left-centre government built around the Christian Democrats and the two Socialist parties.

But if the immediate future in Italy seems not grave, the long-run outlook is less certain.

For it remains a serious question whether politics Italian-style can be reformed — in the grace period of, say, five years which economic progress has assured — to the point where government and administration in this country can be brought into harmony with the vast social changes that have taken place.

Picket in House, Another Outside

WINNIPEG (CP) — The wheel has come full circle for Joe Borowski, who entered the House of Manitoba politics three years ago as a legislature picket protesting cabinet salaries.

Today he'll be sworn in as minister of transportation while outside on the legislature steps camps a picket protesting.

Among other things, the salaries of "inexperienced" cabinet ministers — especially Joe Borowski —

Camp-picket Jake Fleming, 34, will draw no protests from Borowski.

FREE COUNTRY
"It's a free country," said the 35-year-old former miner whose bizarre course to the inner circles of power included several jail terms for refusing to collect the 5-percent provincial sales tax at his Thompson gift shop.

"If he feels he's got a legitimate beef, I'm certainly not going to stop him."

Neither was Attorney-General Sterling Lyon, who steps down today as a member of Premier Walter Weir's Progressive Conservative government, defeated by Ed Schreyer and his New Democratic Party in the June 23 general election.

SECOND SIT IN
He'll leave that up to the new government, said the attorney-general, who is responsible for enforcing anti-camping rules passed after Borowski's second sit-in in 1966.

Borowski says he doesn't feel compromised by accepting a minister's salary of $21,800, including seasonal indemnities and expenses.

"I feel vindicated," he adds. Borowski camped for 63 days on the legislature steps following raises of $6,000 to the premier and $5,000 to cabinet ministers after the June 1968 election. He protested that this was being done in the face of a Manitoba minimum wage of 80 cents an hour.

"I never said cabinet ministers weren't worth the money. I

Nixon Opens Assault On Drugs

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon announced Monday a 10-point program to crack down on drug trafficking and addiction in the United States, including tougher penalties for possession and use of LSD.

In a special message to Congress, he cited an 800-per-cent increase in juvenile arrests for drug use during the last few years and said increasing use of narcotics poses a growing menace to the general welfare of the country.

The president's program covers legislation, co-operation with other countries to eradicate drug smuggling, research into uses of narcotics and rehabilitation of users and addicts.

objected to them raising it after an election. If they had raised their salaries before the election, so the people would have had an opportunity to vote on it, then I wouldn't have objected."

The increases subsequently were reduced by $4,000 and $2,500 after Borowski left the legislature steps. The minimum wage has gone up to $1.25.

Borowski previously spent six days on the steps in 1963, demanding local government for the mining town of Thompson. Within a year a municipal council was created.

SALES TAX
As to the sales tax which came into effect June 1, 1969:

"I refused to collect it from my customers, but I paid it out of my own pocket at the whole-sale level. The sales tax, just like the increase in cabinet salaries, should have gone to a vote. It was illegal the way they went about it."

This cost him three jail terms totalling two months, and led to a speech on conditions at the provincial jail in The Pas after he entered the legislature in a February by-election under the NDP banner.

However, he says he's been collecting the tax since the June election.

Murderess Admits Identity

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — Plump, matronly Ruth Judd, sensational trunk murderess of a generation ago, quietly admitted her identity Monday and made an unsuccessful plea to be allowed to return to Arizona alone.

Mrs. Judd, now 64, has been a fugitive from an Arizona mental hospital since 1962 after the latest of seven escapes.

TIGER WOMAN

She was arrested June 27 while working as a cook and maid in the home of a doctor in nearby Alamo.

Nicknamed the "Tiger Woman" by the press of an earlier day, she was convicted in 1933 of the 1931 slaying of two Phoenix girls.

Their bodies, one dismembered, were shipped to Los Angeles in trunks.

Sentenced to hang, she was judged insane and committed to an asylum only 72 hours before her scheduled execution. Six times before 1962 she escaped but was quickly recaptured or she returned voluntarily.

SEVENTH TIME

In October of 1962 she walked away for the seventh time and was not apprehended until traced by a detective. Although identified by fingerprints, she insisted she was actually Marian Lane, a domestic worker.

Monday, however, when Municipal Judge Sam Hall asked if she was Mrs. Judd, she quietly responded: "Yes, my true name is Ruth Judd. I'm known to my friends as Marian Lane."

Judge Hall ordered her held without bail pending action by the state of Arizona.

Ulster Riots Trigger Troop Reply

BELFAST (CP) — More than 1,500 British troops moved into riot-torn Londonderry Monday to guard key installations and the Northern Ireland government declared it is determined to end disorders that left scores injured and entire streets in shambles during the weekend.

The statement issued after an emergency cabinet meeting said the government will not be "held up to ransom" by the rioters.

Wine-Drinking Tailgater Fined for Impairment

A 23-year-old man was fined $400 Monday after pleading guilty in Central Magistrate's Court to a charge of impaired driving.

Henry S. Henderson of 1356 Esquimalt Road was stopped by police when he was observed drinking from a bottle while following another vehicle at a distance of five or six feet.

Court was told that the bottle contained wine.

Magistrate Oatley also recommended that Henderson be suspended from driving anywhere in Canada for four months.

Allan Baldwin of 403 Wilson was fined $75 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of common assault.

Gerald R. Gettle of 3117½ Seymour was remanded until July 21 for sentence and presentence report after pleading guilty to assaulting a peace officer.

Court was told that Gettle struck two Saanich policemen who were trying to settle a dispute between Gettle and his wife.

The accused told court that he didn't remember the incident. "I wasn't drinking. I was just upset that I didn't know what I was doing."

Mike Goyette, 47, residing at the Brentwood Motel, was fined $25 after pleading guilty to causing a disturbance.

Court was told that Goyette was arrested at about 1:20 a.m. Monday in the Peacock Restaurant, 1407 Government.

Goyette was in a highly intoxicated state and had to be forcibly removed, court was told.

Market for 'Stouthearted'

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The "would-be" bulls in this falling market are consoling themselves that volume dries up when prices are on the plunge. The bears reply that volume is small, too, during the technical rallies that have splattered the six-week slump in market values. "It's a question of waiting to see what way the cat jumps next," said one local dealer. "Those who are holding stocks are selling only if they have to, and buyers want to see a sustained change in the trend before they go bargain-hunting."

He believes this might not happen until there is some sort of a selling climax. "That's the historic pattern of these stock market phases," he added. Some analysts say the market is "oversold," but won't predict that buyers are ready to bite at the bargains offered.

The main danger is the market today is that liquidation might force some of the "performance" funds into the market and so produce a selling slump that could hit one for many issues.

Most mutuals must redeem all shares offered to them within a few days, which is a major reason why they like to remain with a fair percentage of their assets in short-term loans.

"It would appear that most funds are liquid at the moment and capable of weathering a fair amount of selling pressure by disgruntled shareholders," said another dealer.

In the U.S., where the Alexander Hamilton Institute of New York believes is going with the tide in financial matters, it is advising its members it does not see any real stock market strength until interest rates level off and stabilize.

New commitments, it says, should be in the blue-chip range and "speculations in this market are only for the stout-hearted."

PLANS TO MOVE ON.
Canada's two main oil pipeline companies and four of its major oil refining companies have very sensibly got to getherto plan a way in which Canada can get the most out of its incipient Arctic oil empire.

Mackenzie Valley Pipeline Research has been formed to determine the feasibility of running a 48-inch pipeline through the frozen north to tap not only the oil already found in Alaska, but also what may yet be found in the Mackenzie Valley.

In one deal are Interprovincial Pipeline, Trans-Mountain Oil Pipeline, Imperial Oil, Shell Canada, Gulf Oil and Atlantic Richfield.

Their plan is to spend about $1,500,000 to find out how practical it would be to run a 1,000-mile pipeline, partly through permafrost, to Edmonton where the black gold of the north would be routed either via Trans-Mountain to the Pacific coast, or through Interprovincial to Canada east and the mid-west of the United States.

STUDY PARTY
Canadian Recheil will carry out the study that is to be completed by the end of the year.

A test section of 4,000 feet will be laid in the most difficult permafrost area near the mouth of the Mackenzie, and the Recheil boys will watch during the cold months later this year to discover how crude petroleum and steel pipe will perform in such conditions.

If the line goes in, the oil of the Arctic will be delivered into the heart of the continent with all the attending benefits.

FIRST FOR IRELAND
A Canadian company is backing the construction of the first metal refinery ever to be built in Ireland.

Northgate Exploration, through its Irish subsidiary, Smelter Corp. of Ireland, is to spend $25,000,000 on a refinery complex which will have a 60,000-ton metal capacity a year and employ up to 700 persons.

Northgate operates an important base metal mine in Galway, and the new smelter which will refine ores from this and other mines is to be located either in County Limerick or in County Kerry, possibly near Shannon Airport.

ARCTIC GAS LEAKS
A new smell of gas is leaking from Panarctic Oil's exploratory well now being drilled at Drake Point on Melville Island.

This, the most northerly oil well ever to be drilled in Canada, is at 8,424 feet. The core was pulled for stratigraphic information, and gas began escaping from it.

Panarctic now is trying to determine whether the gas is coming from an uprise or from a new zone.

Kaiser Strikers Bow To Court Injunction

VANCOUVER (CP) — Underground and construction workers returned to work Monday at Kaiser Resources Ltd. operations in Natal, ending a strike which could have threatened expansion of facilities needed to fill a multi-million-dollar coal contract with Japan.

The move came as 110 striking miners bowed to a B.C. Supreme Court injunction and withdrew pickets in the face of contempt of court proceedings.

M. F. Clemmer, Kaiser industrial relations manager, said mining operations would resume after the company "determines which of the men we want to keep."

SOME FIRED
The workers were fired following a wildcat walkout last Tuesday in a bid for higher wages and Natal officials of the United Mineworkers of America union termed the strike illegal.

"We don't want to re-invent a telephone interview," Mr. Clemmer said, in a telephone interview.

Meanwhile the status of contempt of court proceedings launched before Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe remains unclear.

PICKET LINES
Proceedings were started Friday after the dismissed workers ignored the injunction and about 1,400 employees refused to cross picket lines.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Court of Appeal Monday dismissed an appeal by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union against a Supreme Court injunction which banned strikers from picketing the Imperial Oil Ltd. bulk terminal in Burnaby.

The injunction restricts picketing to the Imperial Oil refinery at Loco.

About 550 oil union workers have been on strike against Imperial and five other companies in the Lower Mainland for seven weeks, seeking a $1 an hour increase. Basic rates currently range from $2.35 to $4.07.

B.C. Telephone Co. reported Monday that a long distance cable between Nelson and Kamloops in the West Kootenay was found slashed either by a knife or axe, knocking out three circuits linking the two cities.

It was the 10th incident of damage to company property since the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C. went on strike June 23.

About 6,600 workers walked off the job to support demands for a 22-per-cent wage increase over two years. The company has offered 17-per-cent.

LONG DISTANCE
The company has been maintaining service with supervisory personnel and other workers, handling more than 1,000,000 long distance calls last week.

Members of the International Brotherhood of America were back on the job again Monday at MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. logging operations at Kelsey Bay on Vancouver Island.

They staged a wildcat walkout last week, claiming they were entitled to overtime pay on Dominion Day. The company said the reason they didn't get any overtime was that the union was on a wildcat strike on Dominion Day.

STRIKE VOTE
A strike vote will be taken this week among 25 employees of the supply division of MacDonald's Consolidated Ltd., which supplies Safeway stores in B.C.

A spokesman for Local 13 of the Office of Technical Employees Union said a strike would tie up the company food distribution to Safeway stores in B.C. and parts of Alberta. The local is seeking its first contract.

Fashions

High Style Low Cost

TORONTO (CP) — Women no longer have to be rich to go out for an evening in a $300 or $500 dress.

Many originals by Christian Dior, Jean Paul Gaultier, Oleg Cassini and Balenciaga are finding new owners through a small number of shops here specializing in resale of fashions from the closets of the rich.

The shops sell clothes in consignment from their original owners for about one-quarter the original price, and sometimes much less. Secretaries, earning about $125 a week, now are attired in high fashion.

OR RENT
Encore, a next-to-new clothing boutique near Yonge and Bloor Streets in central Toronto, even will rent a $900 gown for $35 a night.

Owner Jeri Barnum says second-hand clothes are becoming popular with more and more career girls, television performers and housewives with husbands climbing the executive ladder.

Administrative assistant Barbara Cooper, shopping on her lunch hour, said she learned about the pleasures of couture clothes with an evening in a $900 Oleg Cassini earlier this year.

BUDGET BLOWN
"You can't imagine the quantity I was in," she said. "Invited to a wedding when I'd just blown my clothes budget on a whim."

"I came here — I'd never thought of used clothing before. But I looked at this beautiful gray flannel with the chinchilla collar and muff. I felt I had to have it. I couldn't afford even the second-hand price ($25) at the time but I certainly could rent it."

She said she felt "wow."

Skid Fatal

McCLURE, Pa. (AP) — Two soldiers were killed and 12 were injured when a canvas-topped army truck skidded on a rain-soaked turn, jumped an embankment and turned over.

Ship Troubles Eased

Pirates Steal Queen's Bell

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A trio of long-haired pirates has raided the Queen Elizabeth, berthed here as a tourist attraction. Commodore Geoffrey Marr said the three apparently boarded the ship by climbing ropes up its side under cover of night and made off with a 50-pound brass bell.

Plans to move the Queen Elizabeth to parts unknown appeared forgotten as an official agreement was reached during the weekend on a lease for land alongside the stately ship.

The Queen has not made a profit since it opened Feb. 14 as a tourist attraction here, although some 225,000 visitors have boarded it. Without success, its British owners sought a concessionaire to operate it as a floating hotel, and later a buyer.

SAILING CANCELLED

Several weeks ago, the owners ordered the Queen readied for sailing this weekend, but gave no destination. Recent negotiations apparently put an end to those plans.

Utilities Leasing Corp., reuniting investors seeking to buy the Queen from Cunard Steamship Co., and Port Everglades Authority commissioners reached a compromise agreement for 50-year lease of 135 acres of dockside land.

The Port Authority is scheduled to consider the compromise agreement at its Tuesday's meeting.

SALE NEARER

The deal is reported to call for payment of an additional $2,800,000 over the 50-year period.

Under an earlier agreement now in effect, the Port Authority received $25,000 worth of channel dredging and 10 per cent of the Queen's tourist gate for 4.5 acres of parking land and dockage rights.

The land lease agreement would pave the way for sale of the $3,613,400 vessel.

Stanley Miller, 65-owner of Philadelphia's Drake Hotel, said he would fly to London with hopes of clinching a deal this week to buy the Queen.

Little Progress
TORONTO (CP) — Chief mediator W. H. Dickie met separately with leaders of negotiating teams of the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. and United Steelworkers of America Monday as negotiations resumed in an effort to end a production stoppage at two company plants.

Talks resumed after a week-end recess, but there was little sign of movement on either side towards ending the work stoppage which began Thursday.

UP TO UNION

A senior company spokesman said earlier Monday it was up to the union to make the next move in the effort to write a new three-year contract.

"It could be a deadlock if they take that position," said Homer Seguin, president of Steelworkers' Local 6300, which represents 15,500 men in the Sudbury area. The local negotiates jointly with Local 6200 which represents 1,700 men at Inco's Port Colborne, Ont., refinery.

Seguin said the stoppage could be a long one if the company refuses to raise its most recent public offer of 95 cents an hour more in wages and other benefits of which 81½ cents an hour would represent wage increases. The union has not made public its exact demands, but in said to be seeking about $1.90 an hour in wages and fringe increases.

Back to Seattle?
U.S. Commissioner Robert McCoy of Albuquerque Monday appointed lawyers for Depugh and Peyson. McCoy said he would hold an extradition hearing to determine if the two men would be returned to Seattle or Kansas City, where Depugh is wanted for jumping bond.

NO DATE SET
The federal official said he expected "to dispose of the case this week" but did not set a date for the hearing.

McCoy set bond for Depugh at $150,000 and $20,000 for Peyson. Both were held in Albuquerque city jail on charges of conspiring to rob three Washington banks in January, 1968, to finance Depugh's self-styled "last line of defense against communism."

McCoy said Depugh, of Independence, Mo., and Peyson, of Hainesport, Miss., had $364 on them when they were arrested and said they could not afford to hire attorneys. The commissioner appointed Gerald Roth to represent Peyson and Jacob Carian to act as Depugh's attorney.

OTHER STATES

McCoy said if Depugh or Peyson waived extradition rights they would be transferred to face charges in other states.

"In the case of Peyson, that would be back to Seattle, Wash., on the federal bank robbery conspiracy charge," McCoy said. "However, in the case of Depugh, it could be either to Seattle or to Kansas City, where

Minutemen Officers Arrested in South

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Robert Balvar Depugh, founder and chief of the Minutemen, may be returned to Seattle to face charges of plotting bank robberies to finance "the last line of defense against communism," a federal judge said Monday.

Depugh, 46, and his top assistant, Walter Patrick Peyson, 27, were arrested Saturday night by the FBI near the southern New Mexico health resort town of Truth or Consequences. They had eluded capture since January, 1968.

QUIET ARREST
FBI agents said Depugh and Peyson were armed with loaded rifles and pistols when they were arrested but did not resist arrest.

Authorities said the men rented a house near Truth or Consequences last December and made it their "underground" headquarters for the Minutemen organization since May.

Smoke 'Cures' Offered

From AP, UPI

NEW YORK — A New York psychiatrist Monday reported development of a 45-minute treatment — using hypnosis as an aid — that he said has enabled one out of five "hard-core cigarette smokers to give up the habit.

Dr. Herbert Spiegel reported to the American Medical Association's 118th annual meeting that the technique also calls for 10-times-a-day, quickie "self-hypnosis" sessions by the patient after the session with the doctor.

He said the method differs from other anti-smoking techniques, in that it accedes a positive approach.

The new top health officer in the U.S. Sunday disclosed his prescription for kicking the cigarette habit — carry around a bullet and pop it into your mouth when you feel tempted.

Dr. Roger Egeberg said he stopped smoking 20 years ago by substituting "one habit for another."

Beard Nears $100,000 Year With First Win Since 1967

To Meet Jets

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League has accepted an invitation to discuss the Joe Namath situation with teammates of the New York Jets' quarterback. The invitation was extended following a team meeting Monday night. Namath, ordered to sell his New York nightspot, has said he will report to the Jets' training camp either today or Wednesday.

EDINA, Minn. (AP) — Frank Beard, playing methodically, almost mechanically, shot a final round 66 Sunday and broke a two-year victory famine with a whopping seven-stroke win in the $100,000 Minnesota golf classic.

Beard started the day with a one-stroke lead but his final margin matched the biggest of the year, Lee Trevino's triumph in the Tucson Open.

Beard, one of the most respected players on the tour, finished with a 72-hole total of 269, 15 under par on the 6913-yard, par-71 Braemar Golf Club course.

Victory, his first since the Indianapolis 500 Festival Open in June, 1967, boosted his season's earnings to $95,238, pushing him into third place on the money list and within sight of his third consecutive $100,000 year.

Beard, 30, finished second in last week's Buick Open, the sixth time since his last victory that he had been No. 2.

Swift says

"Make your meals taste as good as they look"

Here's how

There's no question about a meal looking good—not when you use Swift's Meats in the preparation. They look so good because Swift's Meats are always fresh... made with the finest ingredients available. And that means great taste too! All you have to do is add a little gourmet touch... a tangy glaze here... a bit of spice there... and you've got the kind of meal that makes a cook's reputation.

Lazy Maple Corn Bake

Take 1 lb. Swift's Lazy Maple Bacon and partly cook half the bacon slices in a fry pan. Remove bacon. Fry the rest of the bacon, cut into one-inch pieces, along with $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped onion, until both are cooked. Remove from fry pan and combine with one 12-oz. can kernel corn, one 11-oz. can cream-style corn, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup cracker crumbs, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk. Pour into a buttered 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -qt. casserole. Bake at 375°F. for 15 min. Top with the partly cooked bacon slices and bake 10 min. longer.

Swift's Lazy Maple Bacon is something special! It has a special taste that comes from the slow-smoked, deep maple-sugar cure way it's prepared!

Mama's Red Hots

Combine $\frac{1}{4}$ cup catsup with 1 tbsp. worcestershire sauce and 1 tsp. dry mustard. Score 1 lb. Swift's Premium Wieners on one side as you would ham. Stud with cloves. Baste with sauce. Sprinkle with brown sugar and broil until golden.

Whether you serve 'em plain in a bun, or dress them up in a fancy sauce, Swift's Premium Wieners taste the best. The reason's simple—they've got just the right touch of spices to make their plump, meaty goodness just a little bit better.

Maple-Glazed Prem Loaf

Combine 3 tbsp. maple syrup with 1 tbsp. honey and 2 tbsp. melted butter. Spoon over Prem Loaf and bake for 15 min. at 325°F., basting with glaze frequently.

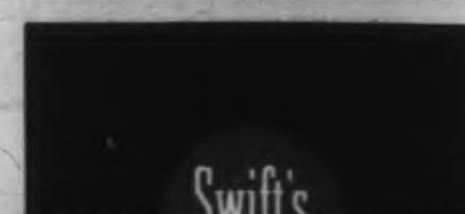

Stuffed Onions

For each serving parboil one onion. Scoop out centre and fill with creamed spinach or broccoli. Top with buttered crumbs and bake beside Prem loaf for 30 min.

Swift's Prem tastes good so many ways... in sandwiches for lunch... in casseroles for dinner... or baked... the way we did here. Why is Prem so good? Because it's made with pork and the added touch of lean beef. Makes all the difference in the taste!

Luck Runs Out on Mets Cubs Beat Seaver, 1-0

Luck ran out Monday on New York Mets after twice defeating Montreal Expos in an unusual National League doubleheader Sunday.

Chicago Cubs blanked the Mets, 1-0, Monday to hand four-game winner Tom Seaver his fourth defeat and move ahead five and one-half games in the battle for the Eastern Division Championship.

Seaver, who hurled a one-hit shutout against Chicago last Wednesday, extended his streak of scoreless innings against the Cubs to 18 before the leaders struck for the run in the sixth inning.

Billy Williams, hottest hitter in the Chicago lineup with 11 hits in 19 previous trips to the plate, singled sharply to left field to bring in Don Kessinger and snap Seaver's eight-game win streak.

Bill Hands handcuffed the Mets on six hits to post his 11th victory in 18 decisions.

It was a different story for New York the previous day as they matched Chicago's doubleheader sweep over Philadelphia Phillies.

Nothing fazed them then. Ed Kranepool, after twice failing to lay down a sacrifice bunt, doubled home pinch-runner Bud Harrelson with the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning to give Mets a 4-3 victory in the first game.

Then, in the second game, a second-base umpire Frank Dezelan ejected Cleon Jones, the Mets' leading hitter with a .350 average, in the third inning when the New Yorker argued too strenuously when thrown out trying to steal.

Light-hitting Ron Swoboda took over for Jones and came up with a clutch single in the seventh inning to bring in Tommie Agee with the tie-breaking run in a 9-7 victory. Agee contributed two home runs for the Mets.

Cubs downed Philadelphia, 6-0 and 6-4, without the help of luck.

DOGGERS GAIN

In other National League action Monday, Los Angeles Dodgers extended their lead in the Western Division over the Atlanta Braves with a 4-1 victory over Houston Astros.

Don Sutton gained his 12th victory with relief help from Jim Brewer and Wes Parker drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and his 11th home run of the season.

Bill Stoneman blanked Pittsburgh Pirates on eight hits in the only other game scheduled with Montreal Expos gaining a 2-0 win.

Minnesota Twins continued to extend their lead in the Western Division of the American League, gaining their sixth straight victory with a 4-3 decision over Chicago White Sox in 13 innings.

Tony Oliva opened the 13th with a single, went to third on Bob Allison's single and scored on Leo Cardenas' single.

The teams traded runs in the 12th inning when Bobby Knop singled in a run for Chicago which was equalized by Cesar Tovar's run-scoring double.

It was never like this in the old days in Sherwood Forest Thoughtless Movie-Maker Turns Star Into an Extra

By KEVAN HULL

Don Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., momentarily lost his cool, and with it, the FITA freestyle championship Monday when the Canadian Archery championships opened at Macdonald Park. Jackson, seeking his fourth straight overall championship, appeared headed for victory after the opening two rounds of the competition had been shot. He was well ahead of the record pace and tournament officials were predicting a massive onslaught on the record.

It came, but the winning total belonged to Ronnie Charnhouse of Lethbridge, Que., who scored 1165 to edge Jackson by two points. Cliff Allan of Victoria was third with 1139, also well above the previous record of 1086.

And today, Jackson must be wishing movie cameras had not been invented.

Shooting strongly from the third station at 50 metres, the ninth-place finisher in the 1968 world championships in Holland already had one arrow in the gold.

DISTURBING ELEMENT

Then a spectator crossed the guard rope and moved in beside Jackson.

The camera commenced to whirl loudly and the Ontario shooter struggled to keep his concentration. But it slipped when the camera started up a second time and Jackson pulled his shot to the right, almost missing the target entirely.

Jackman then shot low to the left on his next shot, and the easy-going Ontario shooter had to fight hard to hold his temper.

RECORDS SMASHED

Apart from that unhappy incident, the first of the four days of the meet was a definite success with five records set in all.

The top three men in the bare bow (instinctive) division also bettered the previous record (811) with Pete Thorburne of Regina winning with 1042 points. Ben Vidal of Honeyman Bay was second with 985, followed by Lauren Carson of Estevan, 942.

Dorothy Lidstone of North Vancouver won the ladies' freestyle event with a record 1168 points, and second-place Virginia Parham of West Vancouver scored 1126 to also better the previous mark of 1059.

LARGE MARGIN

Francoise Barriere of St. Rose, Que., was third with 1078 points.

Don English of Merritt smashed the bare bow record by 87 points with 908 points in the ladies competition. Carol Ladouceur of Windsor was second with 886 points followed by Sheila Carlson of Estevan, 767.

The record to fall was in the junior men's freestyle with Louie Van Mely of Canby, Ont., scoring 857 points. Wayne Hughes of Victoria was second with 839 followed by Michael Skinner of Calgary, 833.

JUNIOR WINNERS

Rod Thourbrey of Regina won the junior bare bow event easily over Nanaimo's Don Walker, 892-676, while Wanda Allan of Victoria was the junior women's bare bow champion with 582.

The championships continue today at Macdonald Park with Canadian rounds starting at 9 a.m. followed by club and battle club events.

Eskimos Score Upset Bombers Tie Stamps

From Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, two teams not considered to be among the elite, Monday night came up with the first major upset in pre-season Canadian Football League play.

In Ottawa, the Eskimos scored two touchdowns late in the fourth quarter to knock over the Rough Riders, defending Grey Cup champions, 15-13.

In Winnipeg, Blue Bombers spotted Calgary Stampede a 22-0 lead and came back with a tremendous rally to manage a 22-22 tie.

Quarterback Coley Colehour and Rich O'Hara, a rookie split end from Northern Arizona University, combined to win it for the Edmonton club.

With Riders leading, 13-2, Eskimos got close at 10:31 of the last quarter when Colehour threw a scoring pass to O'Hara from the Ottawa seven-yard line and Joe Petrone converted.

Two plays after the kickoff, Riders fumbled and Eskimos recovered the ball on the Ottawa 27-yard line.

It took just two plays to get the winning points. Riders were called for interference on a pass thrown to Terry Swann, bringing a first down only 10 yards out. Colehour then threw to O'Hara in the end zone for the victory.

After stopping Eskimos in three running plays from the two-yard line, Riders opened the scoring at 6:08 of the first quarter with Russ Jackson and Margene Adkins combining for 21-yard touchdown pass.

DULL PERIODS
Don Sutherland converted and it was 8-0 at the half with Bill Van Burkleo getting a second-quarter single. Van Burkleo got another single in the third quarter before Eskimos got their first two points on wide field-goal attempts by Petrone.

Sutherland kicked a fourth-quarter field goal before the Eskimos began their rally and completed the scoring with a single point when his field-goal attempt late in the fourth quarter went wide.

WITH A RUSH
Stampede started as if they were going to run Bombers right out of the park when Howard Starks and Jerry Keeling combined on a spectacular 82-yard play which brought a touchdown at 39 seconds.

Larry Robinson converted and kicked a single point at 5:46 when his 25-yard field goal try was wide. Then Starks ran 11 yards for a second touchdown at 8:03. Robinson converted and it was 15-0 at the quarter.

Quarterback Bill Redell scored on a 28-yard run at 1:18 of the second quarter. Robinson again converted and the Stampede had a 22-0 bulge before the game was 17 minutes old.

But the Bombers pulled even before the third quarter was six minutes old.

WHO ELSE?
Dave Rainey started the comeback 71 seconds after Redell's touchdown when he broke away for a 51-yard touchdown run.

Pierre Guindon kicked the convert, then John Schneider and Grant combined for a seven-yard touchdown pass at 8:34. Guindon missed the convert but kicked a single point at 14:59 to leave it 14-22 at the half.

Bombers showed right from the kickoff in the third quarter. Butch Pressley ending the march at 3:41 with a three-yard run for a touchdown. Guindon converted and ended the scoring less than two minutes later by getting a point from a wide field goal try from 35 yards.

McLaren Team One-Two In 200-Mile Road Race

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP)

Bruce McLaren shook off a tight challenge from a new Italian Ferrari and a more serious one from his teammate, Denis Hulme, and roared to victory Sunday in the $50,000 Canadian-American Challenge Cup road race.

McLaren, driving a bright orange McLaren Chevrolet of his own design, grabbed the lead at the start of the 200-mile race and was never headed as a crowd of 50,000 jammed the tight corners of the 2.13-mile Watkins Glen circuit.

Hulme finished second, only 30 yards behind his employer. A new 12-cylinder Ferrari, driven brilliantly in its first outing by New Zealander Chris Amon, was a distant third.

McLaren, 32-year-old New Zealander now living in England, collected $10,000 plus cash accessory awards in winning his second of the three races-run thus far this year in the $1,000,000 challenge cup series. Hulme won the other one.

SETS RECORD
McLaren averaged 126.06 mph for his 87 circuits of the demanding course. It was a race record for the Glen. Jackie Stewart set the old one of 124.89 mph last year in a Formula One car.

Hulme shared speed honors by turning the fastest lap, 1:22.77 mph.

Amon, giving the bright red Ferrari its debut in the Can-Am, stayed close to McLaren and Hulme during the first 75 miles, but dropped back steadily after that as the McLaren duo picked up the pace. He was more than 30 seconds behind at the finish.

Three Porsches, which dominated Saturday's six-hour endurance race, came back to challenge the more powerful group 7 cars Sunday. It was strictly no contest. The best of the German machines, one driven by Jo Siffert of Switzerland, finished sixth behind fourth place George Eaton of Toronto and fifth place Chuck Parsons of Deerfield, Ill.

McLaren now has 55 points toward the Can-Am series championship. The winner of the 11-race series picks up an additional $30,000 from a $200,000 jackpot set up by a series sponsor.

Rally Brings Sooke Team Bantam Title

Sooke scored 12 runs in the last three innings to defeat View Royal, 14-5, Sunday at Helmecken Park and capture the lower Vancouver Island bantam boys softball tournament.

The unbeaten champions knocked View Royal into the losers' bracket of the double-knockout tournament with a 12-2 win. View Royal came back for a 6-5 decision over Esquimalt "A" to gain a final berth.

Esquimalt "B", 11-4, in Sunday's opening game as Brad Kelly pitched a three-hitter.

HEALING SUBSTANCE...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch
Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved...actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

City Track Club Takes 11 Medals

EDMONTON — Four Victoria Track Club performers became double winners Sunday in the Western Canada age class championships to give the club 11 of the 54 gold medals earned by the champion B.C. team.

Penny May, Brad Yakubovich, Dave Weicker and Wendy Thompson gained their second victories of the meet on Sunday and clinched berths in the Canadian championships in Calgary, July 26 and 27.

Miss May, winner of the 200-metre hurdles Saturday, romped to victory in the juvenile 100-metre hurdles on Sunday in 15.3 seconds on the wind-swept track.

SPRINT SWEEP
Yakubovich, a midget, won the 200 metres in 22.3 seconds to complete a sweep in the dashes. Weicker and Miss Thompson both earned doubles in the middle distance events.

An easy victor in the 800 metres Saturday, Weicker was hard-pressed in the junior 1500 metres, winning by a tenth of a second with a run of 4:11.5 minutes.

Miss Thompson captured the juvenile 1500 event in a smooth 4:44.6.

THEY CAME CLOSE
Two other Island competitors gained their second thirds of the meet in the middle distances. Paul Washington of Cowichan Valley Track Club finished strongly in the juvenile 1500 and Allen Weicker of VTC repeated the feat in the midget 1500.

Ron Davies of VTC was fourth in the junior pole vault while clubmates Murray Keeling and Lindsay Jack were sixth in the juvenile men's discus and seventh in the juvenile women's high jump, respectively.

Jamaicans To Test Top Clubs

Jamaica's touring women's field hockey team will play twice at Royal Athletic Park this weekend.

The provincial team selected for the Canadian Summer Games will provide the opposition for the Saturday game, starting at 2:15 p.m. The Jamaicans complete their Victoria visit Sunday with a game against a Vancouver Island all-star team starting at 7 p.m.

Vancouver Jokers and a Vancouver Island men's team will play a preliminary game at 1 p.m.

Anyone interested in betting a Jamaican player from Friday to Sunday is asked to telephone Joe Speight at 385-5146.

Cassius Loses Appeal —Resentence July 24

HOUSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay's plea that his conviction on a charge of refusing to enter the armed forces be set aside was rejected Monday by Federal Judge Joe Ingraham.

An appeal could offset the order, but the former heavyweight champion was instructed to appear before Judge Ingraham at 9:30 a.m. July 24 for resentencing.

Judge Ingraham rejected the contention that illegally obtained wire tapped conversations involving Clay had tainted the conviction and refused to set aside the 1967 jury verdict.

Summaries of four such conversations were admitted into evidence during a June hearing. The Supreme Court had ordered the hearing to determine whether Clay's conviction was tainted by the information obtained from such surveillance. Clay had appealed to the Supreme Court his conviction and maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Judge Ingraham noted that one taped conversation involving the late Dr. Martin Luther King quoted Clay as advising the civil rights leader to be careful of "them whitties." But the judge said this had no effect on the justice department rejection of Clay's claim for draft exemption as a conscientious objector.

In addition to the conscientious objector claim, Clay also had sought exemption as a Black Muslim minister.

Clay had appealed to the Supreme Court his conviction and maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Judge Ingraham noted that one taped conversation involving the late Dr. Martin Luther King quoted Clay as advising the civil rights leader to be careful of "them whitties." But the judge said this had no effect on the justice department rejection of Clay's claim for draft exemption as a conscientious objector.

In addition to the conscientious objector claim, Clay also had sought exemption as a Black Muslim minister.

Cooley:

New 'Heart' Due Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Denton A. Cooley disclosed Monday that he and an associate have developed a new, harder-working, artificial heart device that should be ready for use within six weeks.

"If you have a dead heart and a live body and a live central nervous system," Cooley said, "I can see no moral objection to utilizing the artificial heart."

Cooley thus rejected anew the criticism of his use of an arti-cial heart in Houston last April 4 on Hassel Karp, a 47-year-old man "at the point of death" from heart disease.

Karp lived for 65 hours with the artificial heart before a donor could be found to supply a human heart. But he died April 8, about 38 hours after the human-heart transplant.

Cooley described the operations on Karp at a scientific session of the 118th annual convention of the American Medical Association.

Cooley said he developed the new artificial heart with Dr. Domingo Liotta, who worked with him on the first device.

In the new device, Cooley said, the chambers and pumping mechanisms have been redesigned, with compression working from four directions instead of one, as in the original device.

"Within six weeks," he said, "we will have tested the newest device."

He said he intends to keep the device on standby for use when a transplant is needed, but there is no human donor heart available.

The availability of human donors remains a problem, he said.

Spare Bedroom Good for Road

LONDON (UPI) — Society portrait painter Cowan Dolan decided the time had come to sell his six-year-old Jaguar. His frugal wife decided differently — they'd use it as a spare bedroom.

"Now we don't have to tax the car and we didn't have to get planning permission for another room," said Mrs. Dolan. "It's worked out fine."

Shelford Injured in North

BURNS LAKE, B.C. (CP) — Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford of British Columbia was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital here Sunday following a highway accident.

Police said Mr. Shelford suffered chest and leg injuries when the car he was riding in hit a piece of road-building equipment Saturday on the northern trans-provincial highway near Houston.

New Violence Wave Strikes California

From UPI

BERKELEY, Calif. — Police and demonstrators battled Monday in renewed violence over the "Peoples Park."

The disorders began when a group of activists tried to celebrate Hostile Day by assaulting the park's wire fence with snippers concealed in loaves of bread.

It took 130 police, using bully clubs and tear gas, several hours to end the disturbances in which University of California students and off-campus radicals fought with rocks, bricks, tack-armed cherry bombs and other missiles.

A total of 18 persons were arrested. One policeman suffered a serious arm injury and a half dozen other officers had minor injuries. Some of the demonstrators were also injured, and two newsmen were knocked down.

DELIBERATELY SET

Five fires broke out and about 10 shots were fired at police and firemen early Monday in the predominantly Negro Oak Park area of Sacramento.

The incidents occurred in the same area where racial violence erupted June 15.

Police said the fires were apparently deliberately set.

Concrete chips kicked up by a bullet hit one officer's ankle, but there were no other known injuries. There were no arrests in connection with the violence.

In San Diego, police said Monday an outbreak of looting, arson and sniping that left two persons dead in the Negro Logan Heights section during the night apparently was planned and organized. They feared a new wave of violence. "It looks good out there now but we don't know what to expect tonight," Police Inspector William Garlington said Monday. "Hopefully we will be able to stop anything before it starts."

All policemen were placed on 12-hour shifts and beefed up for the area Monday night, after the rampage in which stores were robbed and looted, four major fires and numerous minor ones were set and police were harassed by snipers.

Our biggest interest is you.

Our biggest interest is never paid. We give it away for free. Because it's the kind of interest you can't measure in percentage points. The interest we take in you when you ask our help with your problems. Of course we pay high interest on your savings, just like any bank. That's only natural. And the longer you leave your money, the more interest you get. That follows too. When you think about it though, a bank should give you both kinds of interest. The Royal Bank does. Come in and see.

Woman Loses Uninsured Fortune

MONTREAL—A woman said uninsured collector's items valued at about $100,000 have been stolen from her suburban Laval des Rapides home.

Mrs. Hermance Maritz, who described herself as a "compulsive collector," said she lost collections of valuable coins, tapestries dating back to 400 B.C. paintings and jewelry while she was away for the weekend. She said that none of the articles was insured because she considers insurance men to be "crooks."

TITOVO UZICE, Yugoslavia Winner of a police-sponsored contest for essays praising the guardians of the law, was Vilovak Miler, 28, a three-convicted burglar serving a three-year jail sentence.

DURBAN—Theologian Gertrude, leading lay crusader against the bared female thigh, rejected as "scandalous" an invitation to judge a local Miss Miniskirt contest. "We wanted Mr. Yssel to be a judge so he could see the healthy spirit that prevails in such a contest," said organizer Harry Cohen.

SAN ANTONIO—Firecracker, the San Antonio whooping crane born a week ago, has died. The cause of death was not immediately known. The little bird had been under intensive care since its birth when it was discovered that it had slipped tendons in both legs.

Mrs. Hartwig's despair

WASHINGTON—Last John Nugent said she is expecting her second child in late December.

WINNIPEG—Lt. Brian Alston, 24, the Canadian Forces youngest Red Knight solo aerobatics pilot, was killed in the crash at Canadian Forces Base Moose Jaw, Sask., of his Tutor jet during a public display.

HOUSTON—A federal judge ruled the government did not use wiretap information in convicting Cassius Clay of draft evasion, bringing the former heavyweight boxing champion closer to a prison cell.

LONDON—A police surgeon thought Gilbert Banjo, 27, must have the constitution of a stone. Hauled in for suspected drunken driving, he was willing to give blood sample. But the doctor who pricked Banjo's fingers couldn't find a vein or an artery. He settled for a urine test which proved positive.

SEATTLE—John Canaday, 24, was condemned to death by a Superior Court jury for the strangulation deaths of two Seattle women earlier this year.

CHICAGO—A federal judge refused to set aside the conviction of Teamsters Union head James Hoffa, who appealed on grounds that information gathered by the FBI through wiretapping was used against him.

READING, England—A Berkshire man who made medical history by recovering from a bout of mumps when he was 99 has earned himself a new reference in the record books. Healer Thorpe recently celebrated his 105th birthday and now is believed to be Britain's oldest man.

THRINGSTONE, England—Milk delivery merchant Joe Dennis lost 15 dozen eggs in two weeks they were stolen by a stray Labrador dog. It was captured by police and taken to a Leicestershire pound.

POWELL RIVER—Minister without portfolio, Mrs. Isabel Dawson was nominated to carry Social Credit party colors again in Mackenzie riding in the next provincial election.

SEATTLE—Before William Covington can get married, he's going to have to lose a little weight—a 60-pound lead ball chained to his right leg by prenuptial celebrants.

'Million-to-One' Chance Led to Murder Charge

VANCOUVER (CP)—John Melvin Ritey, 24, was remanded for eight days Monday when he appeared before Magistrate

Maurice Mulligan, charged with murder.

The remand was granted after Ritey asked for legal aid. Ritey was charged Sunday with non-capital murder of a youth, aged about 19, whose body was found wrapped in plastic in a grave in an isolated forest area near Hope, 100 miles east of here.

The charge against Ritey names the victim as Kenneth Black.

Prosecutor Stewart McMoran told the court that police are holding as a material witness Ronald Stuart Clark, 19, and hoped to have another material witness returned under court writ from Ontario.

MAN SPOTTED Mr. McMoran told the court the victim had been killed in late April. His body was kept in a city apartment for about two months, he said.

The body was found near Hope after police checked out a report from Sergeant A. W. Wieshlow of the Dawson Creek RCMP detachment.

Later Wieshlow was driving to Prince George when he spotted a man at a service station on the John Hart Highway, 70 miles north of Prince George.

The officer described the sighting as a "million-to-one chance."

An hour later an RCMP roadblock stopped a car and took one man into custody. Another man, Steve Thorlakson, 19, of Surrey, was also in the car.

AT GUNPOINT Thorlakson told police he had been robbed and held at gunpoint after picking up two hitchhikers.

Ritey was subsequently charged with robbery in Prince George and was remanded 30 days on that charge for psychiatric examination.

Homesteader Marks No. 94 Today

A man who homesteaded in Saskatchewan 70 years ago will celebrate his 94th birthday in Victoria today.

"At that time, the government would sell you 160 acres of land for $10 if you would live on it for six months of the year," said George Pearce of 925 Sudej.

Mr. Pearce was born in Manitoba, Ont., in 1875, but left for the western frontier when he was 24 years old.

He homesteaded at Moose Jaw for half of every year and worked as a herd boy for the remainder.

After working as a herd boy for about 15 years, Mr. Pearce left Moose Jaw to serve in the First World War.

"I was gassed at Passchendaele," he said, "and when they took me to the hospital, the only skin I had left was that on my face."

The settler moved to Victoria five years ago to recover from an illness. He now is in good health and sits outside on his apartment veranda each day.

Moon Riders May Face Dust Blasts

LONDON (UPI)—Paul Haney, former public affairs director of the U.S. Space Agency, said Monday the Apollo 11 astronauts face the risk of moon dust explosions — a possible hazard never mentioned publicly by NASA.

Haney, speaking on Independent Television's News at Ten, said "Moon dust carried into the moonship could explode or burst into flames."

While the possibility is remote, it's been enough of a nagging worry to trigger a number of studies in the past three years, some even before the disastrous Apollo fire of 1967, he said. "It is a danger that has never been mentioned publicly by NASA officials."

Centre, a spokesman said, "NASA was not afraid" to talk about the possibility of moon dust causing a flash fire in the landing craft.

"It's considered extremely unlikely so it's not considered worth making a big blowup about," he said.

Haney resigned from his job in April as chief spokesman for America's astronaut and the space effort after NASA ordered him transferred from the agency's Manned Space Centre in Houston, Tex., to a desk job in Washington.

Shortly afterwards he went to work for ITN in London and is scheduled to cover the Apollo 11 moonshot for the British network.

Haney said "the moment of truth will come when the astronauts return to the moonship after two hours and 40 minutes on the moon's surface. They've been told to wipe their feet carefully and take off their shoes before they go inside. They must also brush off any particles of dust clinging to their space suits."

Scientists think it possible that once the moon dust may have contained oxygen. When exposed to the super-charged oxygen atmosphere inside the moon ship, the dust may begin to glow and give off heat.

Moon Shots

From CP, UPI, AP
More people throughout the world are expected to watch the Apollo 11 moon flight on television than any other single event.

Even some communist countries plan TV coverage, while Venezuela has declared July 21 a public holiday. South Africa, which has no television, and China are among the few nations which will not be watching.

CAPE KENNEDY — Apollo 11 Commander Col. Thomas Stafford says the biggest risk of the Apollo 11 flight will come Sunday when the lunar lander is "hovering" to set down on the moon's surface. Stafford, who flew to within 50,000 feet of the Apollo 11 landing site last May, said the touch-down is far riskier than any of the planned astronaut activities on the moon's surface.

Big Spending vs. Hunger Theme of Negro Protest

COCOA, Fla. (UPI) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference announced Monday it will hold demonstrations involving Negroes and males at nearby Cape Kennedy to protest the spending of huge sums for space while millions go hungry.

"We do not oppose the space shot," said Hosea Williams, SCLC's director of political education, referring to Wednesday's launching of three astronauts toward a moon landing. "But we are protesting America's inability to choose the proper priorities."

Williams said the total cost of the Apollo program would have solved hunger problems for 31,000,000 persons.

Ralph Abernathy, who succeeded the late Dr. Martin Luther King as head of the civil rights organization, was scheduled to arrive Monday night to lead 48 hours of demonstrations beginning Tuesday morning.

Williams said 25 poor Negro families from across the South will participate in the demonstrations. They range in size from a low of eight persons to a high of 19 from Barber County, Ala., the home of former Alabama governor George Wallace.

World's Youth Joins Hands in Village

By DON GAIN

The flags of 10 nations were unfurled Sunday at Malvern and Westerham School, 1765 Rockland, when Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson opened the Victoria village of the Children's International Summer Villages.

The 11th flag to be unfurled was the CISV flag.

The opening ceremonies began when the delegations from each country took up their positions beside their flags on the lawn of the school. Colorful in their country's costumes, they sang, in turn, their national anthems, and their flags were unfurled. They all joined hands as the CISV flag was raised to the top of its pole.

SHORTLY AFTER

All of the 11-year-old delegates and their leaders were there except those from Mexico, who had been held up due to transportation difficulties and arrived shortly after the ceremony.

Each delegation consists of two boys and two girls, and a male and a female leader.

In his speech of welcome, the lieutenant-governor told the visitors that Canada was made up of people from all the countries of the world.

MIXING POT

"But Canada is a mixing pot rather than a melting pot," he said.

"These people from other countries become Canadians and they mix, but many of them keep their own cultural traditions. I think we can become enriched by them."

For the next month, the 11-year-olds will be playing together, showing each other their countries' customs, learning each others' languages and taking excursions.

OPEN HOUSE

At 2 p.m. Sunday, the village will hold open house for the public, with songs, dances and skits by the children. After the entertainment the children will mingle with the guests.

Among the leaders accompanying the children are a medical student, an airline hostess, an aeronautical engineer, a travel agent-architect, an interpreter, a psychologist, teachers and university students.

The purpose of the Victoria village, as with all of the villages held throughout the world, is to bring together children at an age when they have not yet formed the prejudices of race, color and religion.

Countries represented are Costa Rica, Germany, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Norway, the Philippines, Sweden, the U.S. and Canada.

LONDON (AP) — Some of England decision last Tuesday to reject immediate union of Anglican parish churches opened their altars to Methodists Sunday, despite the Church of England's ruling.

with senior members of the university to take communion at the Wesley Methodist Church.

Competing Sisters Kept in Stitches

HALIFAX (CP) — Sibling rivalry can sometimes keep kids in stitches.

Eleven-year-old Jean Coady wasn't going to let her younger sister steal all the family thunder. Two can play the old rush-to-the-hospital-for-appendix - operation game.

Nine-year-old Donna

Coady was whisked off to the Halifax infirmary about 8:45 p.m. last Thursday and her appendix was out by 10:30.

At 9:45 p.m., Jean was rushed to the same hospital for an appendectomy at 11:30.

Today the girls are sharing the same hospital room and "feeling fine."

Sunken Treasure Sold With More to Come

LONDON (AP) — Sunken treasure and cannon, recovered after lying on the bottom of the Atlantic for 2½ centuries, were sold at auction for £12,000 ($31,200) Monday.

Sotheby's said it was the largest haul of sunken treasure ever to be auctioned. There is much more of the treasure to be sold. Seventh century English, French, Portuguese, and Spanish gold coins—and two French bronze cannons from the reigns of Louis VIII and Louis XIV—were found in the wreckage of the English flagship Association.

The Association went down in a storm with four other warships of the British Mediterranean fleet and loss of 2,000 men in 1707 off the tip of the English coast. The ships were returning from a raid on the French fleet at Toulon.

Roland Morris, a Cornish seaman, directed the divers in recovering the prize after several years of searching. Morris was on hand as his two canoes were sold for $5,000 ($15,600) to a London gun-making firm.

In his hunt for the wreck Morris was guided only by an 18th-century map which he had found in an old Cornish manor house.

He and his team of divers carried out their search in difficult conditions. Fighting treacherous currents, heavy seas

seven miles out in the Atlantic, and a seabed battered by moving rocks they gradually salvaged enough treasure to fill three chests.

Before offering a property listed with him by the owner it is the realtor's duty to advise the owner honestly and intelligently regarding its fair market value.

Boat Deaths 'Shocking'

Problems and dangers of boating brought a warning Monday from Victoria harbormaster Capt. Ronald Newell.

"It's shocking how many lives are lost in boating accidents every year," Capt. Newell said.

"There are so many places in the province where people can operate small boats, and many of them are not aware of the dangers. They don't know the power of the sea. They don't know you should never overload a boat. They don't carry lifejackets, and some who do, don't use them."

Capt. Newell urged small boat operators to visit the Victoria Post Office to see the display of safety equipment set up by the federal transport department.

"The public should take advantage of it," the harbormaster said. "They should see what safety equipment is necessary and they should pick up the free literature."

In the display are lifesaving vests, a bilge pump, a bailer, paddles, fire extinguishers, a load-hailer, flares, a first aid kit, a heaving line, anchor and ropes.

There are lists of safety equipment for pleasure craft from under 18 feet to 65 feet, and there are charts of the Canadian Buoyage System.

Capt. Newell, president of the Vancouver Island branch of the Naval Officers' Association, says the organization has taken on boating safety as a national program.

He said he would like to see the provincial education department take it up as a subject for instruction.

"We'd like to get the message to everybody," he said Monday night.

Union Leader's Claim:

Phone Bugged Before Strike

By DON COLLINS

A Victoria strike leader said Monday that someone began listening in on his home telephone conversations long before the current telephone strike.

At the same time, the B.C. Telephone Co. denied it had "bugged" union phones, but admitted tracing what it termed nuisance calls.

It also said Monday had brought the 12th and 13th cases of sabotage since the strike of 6500 company workers began June 23. This included the cutting of a long-distance cable in the West Kootenays and the shorting of an open lead wire in the East Kootenays.

Hugh Gow, chairman of the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers' strike committee in Victoria, said: "My own home phone has been monitored for three months."

Similar accusations were made last week.

As an experienced telephone man, he said, he could determine this by a variety of sounds. This included clicking noises and "a drop in transmission."

Referring to the phone at Victoria strike headquarters, he told a reporter: "We know this phone you're speaking on right now is under surveillance — it is being monitored."

"We can't prove it, but we know it to be so," Glyn Jones, Victoria information officer for the company, said there had definitely been no "bugging" of phones. He said the company had simply been "tracing and searching" nuisance calls.

A management personnel manning the phones since the strike began had complained of a series of nuisance calls.

Mr. Jones said no words need be spoken to constitute a nuisance call. A call comes under this category if it disrupts work in the company offices, or in any way affects priority services.

"In the event that any action is to be taken, it would be handled by the company's legal and security departments," he said.

Mr. Gow said he looked upon such references to the legal department as "an attempt to harass and scare the people in our federation."

"It can be construed as a threat," he said.

Mr. Jones listed Monday's incidents of damage as:

● The slashing of a cable five miles south of Kaslo, which put three long-distance circuits out of order between Nelson and Kaslo.

● The climbing of a telephone pole six miles east of Cranbrook by someone who attached a foreign wire to the existing open wire, affecting a CBC radio feed to Fernie and Natal.

Fluoride Vote 'Pointless'

There's no point in another fluoridation referendum while B.C. law requires a 60 per cent affirmative vote for it to pass, says Greater Victoria school district's director of dental services.

Dr. David Parfitt expressed the opinion in his annual report to the school board, received by trustees Monday.

Dr. Parfitt reported that he had been a member of a committee preparing for a fluoridation referendum in Victoria. He noted that a fluoridation referendum in Vancouver last winter cost $27,000 and failed, although it got a 53 per cent yes vote.

"The big problem is our provincial legislation," said Dr. Parfitt.

"British Columbia is now one of the few provinces that requires a referendum for fluoridation, and the only province that requires a 60-per cent majority."

"So B.C. lags behind, with only 7 per cent of its population drinking fluoridated water."

"Until the provincial government changes its outlook on this matter, it is felt that it is a waste of effort and money to press for a referendum," said Dr. Parfitt.

The most recent fluoridation votes in Greater Victoria were in Oak Bay in 1965 and 1966. In 1965 the plebiscite failed with a 58.6-per-cent majority. The next year it failed again with 52.1 per cent.

The school board officially supports fluoridation, as does the department of education. The metropolitan health board of Greater Victoria also endorses fluoridation.

'Several Factors' Possible in Death

The death on June 2 of Catherine Josephine Munning, which was believed to have been caused by carbon monoxide poisoning, might have been the result of a number of factors, a preliminary hearing was told Monday.

Lawrence Ernest Munning, 41, charged with non-capital murder of his wife, appeared in Central Magistrate's Court and listened quietly as 10 witnesses testified on behalf of the Crown.

Dr. William B. Hay, assistant pathologist at St.

Joseph's Hospital, told the hearing that the amount of carbon monoxide found in Mrs. Munning's body during the autopsy wasn't sufficient to cause death.

"It was below the lethal level," said Dr. Hay.

He said death occurred "due to a lack of oxygen," but he emphasized that it was difficult to attribute it to any single factor.

Traces of alcohol had also been found in Mrs. Munning's blood, he said. A combination of alcohol and carbon monoxide could have caused the woman's death.

"I cannot determine the cause of her death, other than lack of oxygen," he said.

Victoria psychiatrist Dr.

Leyda Lythgoe told the hearing that Munning had visited her with his wife prior to her death because he was worried about her deteriorating condition.

Dr. Lythgoe said Mrs. Munning was mentally unstable and that she had advised Munning to commit her to a mental institution for psychiatric treatment.

Asked how Mrs. Munning's deteriorating condition was showing, Dr. Lythgoe said that her mood would change from utter depression to exhilaration in a short time.

Such persons often had suicidal tendencies, she said.

The hearing will continue today.

Oil-Slick Trouble

Victoria police had hands full rerouting traffic around oil slick on Government Street which dumped motorcycle Regis Bouchard, of CFB Esquimalt, at 6:23 p.m. Sunday. Cyclist was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated for injuries to right leg and arm. Source of oil was unknown. —(William E. John)

Soviet Ship Watched From Air

Surveillance of the Russian vessel Tajmyr off the Queen Charlotte Islands continues into its 42nd day today — by air.

A forces spokesman said Monday that Argos maritime aircraft were continuing the watch for the first time since the shadowing tactics began on June 3. He said the Tajmyr was remaining at the same place.

Ship movement reports show that the destroyer-escort HMCS Gaskatchewan, which began the surveillance, and HMCS Yukon, which later relieved it, were in port Monday, but the submarine HMCS Rainbow is at sea and its return time is unspecified.

The Tajmyr, said to be an oceanographic vessel, is 19 to 12 miles from shore.

Another Panhandle Resident Unhappy with Esquimalt

Unhappiness of Panhandle property-owners with the municipality they chose to join 18 months ago was reflected once more in a letter read to Esquimalt council Monday night.

Victor Fuggle of 905 Dellwood said he was paying his municipal taxes under protest.

He referred to a letter sent out by Esquimalt council just before last year's amalgamation vote, which promised sewers by August this year, at a cost of $1,800 a lot, if the Panhandle joined Esquimalt.

THE POSITION

The specific position set forth in that letter, said Mr. Fuggle, would not be fulfilled.

"While this failure of reeve and council is no surprise to me, it nevertheless was the direct cause of the amalgamation resulting in much poorer value for our general municipal tax dollar," said the letter.

"The attempt to combine an unwarranted and unnecessary sewer petition with a request to some property-owners asking them to agree with proposed property changes, was unsatisfactorily explained by Mayor Ray Bryant," said the letter.

OTHERS COMPLAIN

Similar complaints have been made by several other Panhandle residents.

Mayor Bryant said the letter was self-contradictory, as Mr. Fuggle apparently said he was in favor of sewers, but later said the sewer petition was unnecessary.

After the meeting the mayor said a Panhandle sewer petition which failed to gain the required number of signatures early this year had not been signed by Mr. Fuggle, but had been signed by his wife.

LAST OCTOBER

He said that had the petition last October gone ahead as planned, the sewers would have been in on time.

The letter was received and filed.

Complaints of illegal and unethical conduct by an unknown real estate agent had been investigated by the Real Estate Board, but it had not been possible to trace the source, council was told.

At a public hearing June 2, statements had been made about a salesman who approached women in the block bounded by Carrie, Colville and Phoenix.

He was said to have told the women that unless they would agree to sell their property, it would be expropriated by the municipality.

The public hearing was on the reasoning of the block for apartment buildings.

Planning, zoning and housing subcommittee chairman Ald. Roy Elphick said after the meeting he still was not satisfied with the answer.

It seemed that the Real Estate Board had not been in touch with all the women who had been approached, and he said he hoped statements would be obtained from them.

GORGE PARK

Because "vagaries of municipal politics makes them nervous," the Kinsmen Club asked in a written agreement on the operation of a Gorge Park concession building.

So far the concession has been operated on a verbal agreement, and the Kinsmen said they wanted the present terms incorporated in the written statement.

Although Ald. Walter Lock said he could see no reason for nervousness, it was agreed to refer the matter to the parks and playground committee.

OFFICIAL PLAN

An official community plan bylaw was adopted, ruling that Macaulay Point lands should be used for recreational purposes only.

Mayor Bryant said the land was being turned over to the municipality by the defence department.

A woman who gave birth to a child prematurely after a two-car collision Friday night at Bay and Blanshard is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital, and so is the baby.

Mrs. Chanchal Singh, 341 Bay, was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Chaman, and suffered head injuries.

Youth Orchestra

Victorians Go East

Six young Victoria musicians are in rehearsal in Toronto with the National Youth Orchestra, preparing for a two-week concert tour of the Maritimes and eastern Ontario.

Five are with the main orchestra and one with the newly-formed chamber group. No concerts are scheduled by either group in Western Canada. The National Youth Orchestra's last appearance here was in 1957.

Victoria has traditionally been strongly represented in the orchestra. This year's members are Veima Ko, 23, and John Rigby, 17, violinists; Norman Abbott, 23, cellist; Alan Denike, 18, bassoonist, and Richard Carrwell, 18, trombonist. Ian Franklin, 19, oboist, is a member of the chamber orchestra.

Clifford Evers, former concertmaster of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra who went on to become conductor of the London, Ont., symphony, has been added to the faculty of the youth orchestra.

A sharp drop in the demand for logs was blamed Monday for the temporary shutdown of a small Victoria logging business and a sawmill.

"There's just no log sales," said Edward Longland, vice-president of Longland Brothers Logging and Trucking Ltd., which operates in the Leechtown area.

The company, which employs 20 to 25 workers, has dropped out of the logging picture "until this thing gets settled," Mr. Longland said.

SAME REASON

He said he was sure of better days ahead, but didn't really expect the situation to change before September.

He said the Plummer Bay sawmill had closed for the same reason.

There is a possibility other small operations may do the same, he said. Some mills have called annual vacation shutdowns at this time because of the lack of business.

PLYWOOD FACT

The Longland company is under contract to Victoria Plywood Ltd.

Mr. Longland said most of the trouble stemmed from the fact that far fewer houses than expected were being constructed in the U.S.

The American market had been counted on for big log sales.

"It's tight money," he said. "I guess you can blame the whole thing on inflation."

Star Designer Woos with Candor

By MARIAN CHRISTY

NEW YORK — Designer Mollie Parnis is one of those straight-forward, no-nonsense types who can take just as much of the fashion world's status symbols — and then she has to turn them all off, pronto.

The Palm Beach-Caribbean social scene has never been her cup of tea. In two weeks she'll fly to Soviet Russia to soak up the scene that clashes with democracy. "I want to see first-hand what Moscow is all about," she says. And instead of those big, bouncy, beautiful balls which magnetize the moneyed set, Parnis stays home and tries her hand at bridge, gin rummy, canasta and backgammon. Friends, such as Margaret Truman, adore her lack of phyness.

She puts it this way: "I love fashion and the success it has brought me. But I'm not what you'd call a full-fledged careerist. Actually, I love life more than fashion."

It is this down-to-earth attitude reflected in her work to which devoted Parnis clientele respond with alacrity.

When Polly Bergen came to her showroom recently to pick up a gown for a Kraft Music Hall appearance, she had in mind a svelte black gown with loads of décolletage. Parnis talked her into a whimsical shirtwaist in innocent red-and-white stripe organza. The try-on preceded a heart-to-heart chat on whether uncovering the body was a flagrant form of pseudo-sophistication.

The same thing happened with Dinah Shore, who is, first and foremost, a primary devotee of designer Norman-Norell.

Dinah came into New York for a Johnny Carson TV appearance and thought she wanted a severe straight-up-and-down dress steeped in glitter. Parnis coaxed her into a sheer silk shirtwaist gown that had a Gone With The Wind quality about it. "I told her a star has to wear star clothes," says Parnis with directness and emphasis.

When Mrs. Lyndon Johnson was First Lady, her staff sought out Mollie Parnis to make over Lady Bird. Mrs. Johnson helped things along by going on a stringent diet and reducing from size 14 to size 8. Parnis, admiring Mrs. Johnson's immense discipline, gently talked her into shortening her skirts, lowering her heels and wearing more flamboyant colors. Mrs. Johnson soon hit the best-dressed list. The two are still the best of friends.

Mrs. Johnson, still size 8, has recently gone on a fashion binge. She has ordered an offbeat Aztec print dress and a pair of evening pants in a large, flowery Lulusus print. Both choices, by Parnis, are very un-Mrs. Johnson. While in the White House, she couldn't wear printed clothes because they made an indelible impression on the public and ended up as a "one-wearing" fashion. As for pantsuits, they were never dignified enough.

Parnis says: "Mrs. Johnson never tried to compete with previous First Ladies. She established her own personal identity. Now she's carrying her independence one step forward."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've made some mistakes in my life but as I look back over the past 34 years I see many tragedies over which I had no control. Both my parents were drowned when I was 16. My brother whom I adored was burned to death in a fire. A sister I envied and disliked died in a car accident. To this day I feel as if I murdered her because I was driving.

You may not be able to help me, Ann, but perhaps just expressing my feelings in writing will make me feel better. I am haunted by the fear that I will commit suicide. There are times when I hate living and want to die, but I know suicide is the coward's way out. More important, I have three wonderful children who need a mother. Their father is away a great deal and I'm afraid he has no real interest in his family.

I am terrified that I will jump out of a window. Whenever I'm near a large open window I panic. I am so afraid of elevators, I'd rather walk up 10 flights than go into one.

Can you give me a few sentences of hope? What can I do to get over these hellish feelings?—Gwendolyn

Dear Gwendolyn: I almost never recommend books but I'm going to make an exception because I've just read a book that could help save your life. It is called The Prison of My Mind, by Barbara Field Benziger. The publisher is Walker. If your bookstore doesn't have it, ask them to get it.

This book is a moving personal account of a courageous woman who conquered mental illness. Her honesty and openness will give encouragement and hope to every person who fears he or she is cracking up.

The best answer for one who is suicidal is a therapist in whom he has confidence. The author of Prison of My Mind emphasizes this point. While Mrs. Benziger credits therapy with saving her life she makes it abundantly clear that not all psychiatrists are humane, kind and competent.

Dear Ann Landers: When parents who are far from rich give a married son and daughter-in-law $3,000 to help them through a financial crisis, are they entitled to get it back? Or are the parents supposed to forget about it because they have more money than the kids?

Two years have passed since we gave them the money and not a word has been said about paying it back. Last night my husband brought up the subject when our son and his wife drove up in a new car. They called us in a nice, money-happy, and secure. There must be others with the same problem. Will you comment, please?—The Money Bush

Dear Money: What was the underlying reason when you handed over the $3,000? Did you say, "This is a loan, not a

Day Ladies Find Special Field

The literary market is still being saturated these days with the memoirs of people who worked for the Kennedys. Personal aide, the press secretary, the family friend, the late President's adviser, his private secretary, the cook, the governess, and now the personal secretary of the former First Lady. Any day now I expect to hear back-door disclosures from their barber, their vet, and the druggist who sold them their dental floss. This is a crummy trick to pull on the people who bought not only these persons' services, but also their confidence and integrity. It is also the beginning of a whole field of endeavor for day ladies. To Mrs. Wickersham, I have always been known as "Tuesday." Nothing more. Last Tuesday she came in dragging a tape recorder and set it at my elbow. "Say something into this," she commanded. "Like what?" I asked. "Like anything. I just want to test for volume." "What for?" "I figured you're a writer."

Someday, who knows? You might hit it big and then I'll write a book telling that you spend $1,500 a year more than your husband makes. "This is incredible."

"I'll tell everyone how you were such a clothes horse, you got cardboard boxes of dresses stored in your attic." "Those are old maternity clothes." "Don't be picky." She whipped out her notebook and began reading. "Under 'Rotten Mother' I've got notes on the Tuesday you stayed in bed all day and let the kids shift for themselves."

"I had flu." "That's your story... oh, and here's a dandy little argument you had with your husband one Tuesday when he wanted to buy a bigger boat. Do you spell pink with an E?" "I suppose you had my phone bugged too."

"No, that's been done to death," she said. "I'll just listen in at doors and ask questions of a few of your friends who prefer to remain anonymous. Say, you don't suppose you could say something insulting to your sister-in-law at the big bash you're giving Saturday night, could you? I wouldn't ask for myself, but I've got an early deadline with the publisher."

"Mrs. Wickersham, I think you're rotten and you had better leave and take your tape recorder with you." Her eyes glinted with excitement. "Don't stop," she shouted, putting the microphone in my face. "This is better stuff than my friend, Maud Peabody, is getting. She's been the White House Avon Lady since last January and all she has to show for it is a notebook full of sweet smiles."

Chopin Notes on Piano Make Rose Bush Grow

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Bell may have developed the nearest sleight-of-hand trick in the history of magic.

She steps onto the stage and the bank employee suddenly changes into Elizabeth Warlock, Toronto's only female magician.

Miss Bell-Warlock's speciality is playing Chopin on a piano while a rose bush by her side slowly grows as the music progresses.

She doesn't use two of the more sensational acts in the magicians' handbook — sawing people in half or producing animals out of handkerchiefs.

"If I ever saved anybody in half it would be a man," she said in an interview. "And depending on the way I feel I might not put him together again."

Why no animals? She's allergic.

Her act includes producing a sword stick out of a scarf with a flick of the fingers.

She uses only pure silk scarves and treats them like pure gold.

"I hate to see magicians use dirty scarves," she said. "Some do and it looks terrible."

Miss Bell-Warlock was hooked on magic as a child in London, England. She tried to copy one of her father's tricks — tying a knot in a scarf and unravelling it with the snap of a finger — and failed.

She made her stage debut at 15 at a magicians' club and went on to become the youngest winner of the British ring shield of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. She later won the Magic Circle Jubilee grand prize in England.

Despite her success, she still says it's harder to be a good female magician than a good male magician — men have more pockets to hide things in.

Salad Days Easy On Calorie Count

By MARY SUE MILLER

When you are reducing, salads make an ideal luncheon during warm weather. Low-calorie salads with low-calorie dressings, that is!

Such fare, served as a main course at noontime, caters to a reducer's special needs. It supplies the bulk required to satisfy the appetite, the roughage to keep the digestive system ordered, and the vitamins to protect health and skin. Another plus for salads is their great variety. As witness these "international" recipes:

Italian Cabbage Salad: Mix 2 cups shredded cabbage, 1 diced sweet red pepper, 1 diced green pepper, 1 tsp. celery seed and 2 tbsp. low-calorie Italian-style dressing. Chill for 1 hour. Fork onto bed of lettuce and garnish with wafer-thin tomato wedges (half tomato). Serves 2, at 54 calories per serving.

Bermuda Salad: Place skinned section of 1 large orange on lettuce leaves. Garnish with thin-sliced rings of Bermuda onion. Dress with 1 tsp. low-calorie French dressing. Serves one at 105 calories.

Scotch Salmon: Chill one salmon steak, fresh-cooked or canned. Place whole on watercress, and garnish with crisp cucumber slices. Dress with freshly ground black pepper and tarragon vinegar to taste. Serves one with count of 110 calories.

Experiment, and you will find countless salads as delicious, healthful and reducing.

Teen Nuptials On Increase

PARIS (AP) — About twice as many teenagers are being married in France these days as 15 years ago. Special government permission must be obtained for girls under 15 years and three months of age and boys under 18. About 400 such permits have been issued in each of the last few years.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everybody is suddenly talking about. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Word of its success has spread like wildfire. Because this is the diet that really works. We have testimonials in our files reporting on the success of this diet. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first four days. But you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you stuff yourself with foods that were formerly "forbidden," such as big steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, rich gravies, macaroni, lettuce, butter, bacon, fats, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are fully satisfied. And still lose 10 pounds in the first ten days plus 1½ pounds every two days thereafter until your weight is down to normal. The secret behind this new "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this new diet acts as a catalyst (the "trigger") to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose unwanted fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and fluid are gone you will cease to lose weight and your weight will remain constant. A copy of this new and startlingly successful diet plan can be obtained by sending $2 to WEIGHT-AWAY, Dept. 1-15, 1138 Main Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, R2P 1A1. If after trying the diet plan you have not lost 7 pounds in the first seven days, another 6 pounds in the next 7 days, and 1½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth, while enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners.

Couch Grass

Fairly often the postman will bring me a bit of plant along with a letter asking whether it is a weed or a desirable plant, and it isn't always easy to make a clean-cut decision, for what is one man's poison may be another man's meat.

For instance, grass is a valued plant in the lawn but a weed in a gravel driveway. Blackberries are weeds in Australia, invading the grazing lands and fought by every available means.

The water hyacinth, a lovely aquatic plant for the ornamental pool, is choking streams and waterways in tropical countries, and a small army of men is employed the year round to keep the Panama Canal clear of the water hyacinth.

Even the hated couch grass isn't always a weed. I had a letter recently from a lady whose home is amid sand dunes, and she tells me the only grass that would "take" in her shifting ground was couch. It makes a rather coarse and tufty lawn by our standards, but at least it is green underneath and it keeps the soil from blowing away.

For most of us, though, couch grass is still one of the most persistent and difficult weeds we have to contend with. Whether you call it couch — pronounced "couch" — or quack grass or twitch, it is an unending headache. Spreading by seeds which are produced in great profusion on mature plants, and by direct invasion of its creeping, underground stolons.

In cultivated ground, hoeing or rototilling doesn't help much — in fact, it can spread the pest, for chopping the roots to bits simply makes a dozen plants spring up for each one there before. Every tiny bit of succulent white root is capable of sprouting into a new plant.

On temporarily unused ground, Dalapon Grass Killer will give a good kill; this is a powder which is dissolved in water and sprayed or watered on the leaves, where the active ingredient is absorbed into the sap and translocated to the roots, killing them quite effectively. Nothing may be grown in a Dalapon-treated plot for six to eight weeks.

For cultivated ground in active use — say, between the rows in the vegetable plot or between plants in a flower bed — it is safer to use Weed-Rite, a weedkiller which kills all green plants but leaves no injurious residues in the soil. Couch may regenerate from the roots after Weed-Rite, but persistent chemical weeding will keep it under control.

Obviously, neither Dalapon nor Weed-Rite can be used against couch grass in the lawn, for they kill ALL grasses, and in fact, no chemical control has been found for couch grass in the lawn.

There is, however, a way of managing your lawn which will eradicate the couch while encouraging the lawn grasses. This technique was developed at the U.S. Experimental Station at Beltsville, Maryland, where most of America's turf research is centred.

The first step is to set up the mower so it is cutting two inches high. The effect of such high mowing is a somewhat shaggy lawn, but this is quite essential to the treatment.

Next, mow the lawn twice a week throughout the growing season, whether you think it needs it or not. Actually, this isn't as much work as it sounds, for with a motor mower set high, and with only three days of growth on the grass, you can whip through this chore in nothing flat.

Moreover, the mowings are very small and fine and needn't be gathered up nor raked.

Finally, you must feed your lawn with any good lawn fertilizer every four weeks throughout the growing season.

The applications may be a little lighter than the usual once-a-year dressing, for the trick here is to keep the grass growing hard, without any letup or slowdown all summer. Plenty of water is, of course, a must.

This combination of high mowing, frequent mowing and heavy feeding thickens the good grasses but weakens the invader, which has a naturally taller habit of growth and suffers from this constant behaving.

The job may take a year or more, but if followed conscientiously, every single tuft of couch will gradually die out from your lawn.

ART BUCHWALD

Moon Pledge Hokum

WASHINGTON—The only one I know who isn't excited about the upcoming moonshot is an American Indian friend of mine whom I'll call Joe.

Joe showed me a picture the other day of the plaque which the astronauts are going to leave on the moon which said, "We came in peace . . ."

"That," said Joe, "is what they said to us about 400 years ago. We've been taking it on the chin ever since."

"Things are different now, Joe. The space program is specifically designed for peaceful exploration."

"That's because they're certain no one is on the moon. I wonder what would happen if they knew there were tribes of moon people?"

Joe continued: "If the treatment of the American Indian can be used as an example, this is what would happen:

"The first astronauts would land and express feelings of warmth and friendship for the moon people. They probably would bring gifts with them to give to the moon people, and the moon people would give them gifts in exchange.

"The astronauts would ask permission to set up a base on the moon for scientific study, and since there were only three of them, the moon people would agree. They would allot them several acres near the Sea of Tranquility.

"With this base of operations more and more people would start coming to the moon—first scientists, then tourists, then businessmen looking for ore and oil. The earth people would need more land and would start pushing out from the Sea of Tranquility with housing and moon farms.

"The moon people would protest that they had only agreed to a small settlement on the Sea of Tranquility and that the earth people were encroaching on their land.

"The earth people would call for troops to protect them from the hostile moon people, and the air cavalry would be sent up to the moon to protect the settlers.

"The moon people would decide to push out the settlers, but due to lack of fighting equipment, they would be thrown back. Finally, a peace treaty would be signed with the moon people, promising them all the land beyond the Sea of Tranquility.

"But in 20 years, the earth people would discover that there was water under the Sea of Fertility; so, despite the treaty, they would force the moon people out of the Sea of Fertility. In exchange, the earth people would give them all the lands facing the earth on the Sea of Crises, for their sons and their sons and their sons for time immemorial.

"Then in a few years they would discover gold under the Sea of Crises, and they'd send in the cavalry to move the moon people who were left after the fighting was over to the Ocean of Storms. This would be given to them in perpetuity for as long as the moon revolved around the earth and the earth revolved around the sun.

"But then they'd discover natural gas in the Ocean of Storms, and they'd make all the moon people pack up and move to the other side of the moon so the earth people wouldn't have to look at their poverty."

"If what you say is true, Joe, we are indeed fortunate that there is no life on the moon," I said. "But I can't understand why you're so uptight about it."

"There's been some talk about taking over our reservation for a resort area, and the last rumor was that they're going to make it up to us by giving us the same amount of land on the moon."

Paradox of Power

Many years ago, when the U.S. first acquired its nuclear capability, I pointed out "the paradox of power" — namely, that the more power you have, the more carefully you are forced to use it. The simple-minded cannot understand this formula, and thus they become enraged and frustrated when the U.S. refuses to respond massively to foreign provocation.

But this is true not only of the U.S.; it is equally true of all the atomic powers in the world today. They are treading on eggs, and they know it. The quiet and prudent handling of the "Pueblo" incident is no isolated case in modern international diplomacy where the gunboat has been replaced by the tactfully-worded protest.

As the Newspaper Enterprise Association mentioned in a story not long ago, Russia finds itself in the same fix, despite its blustering. Last year, the small and nearly defenceless country of Ghana seized two Russian "fishing ships" that it contended were well inside its territorial waters without permission.

Claiming that the Russian ships were off its coast in order to help return a pro-Communist politician to office, Ghana roughed up the crew and jailed them for months while an investigation was held. After an exhaustive court case, it finally released them.

The Russians bellowed and sputtered and threatened, as only they can do — but it was all words and no action. This, despite the known fact that Ghana is virtually without an air force, and its naval "strength" is laughable.

Yet, Russia knows, as the U.S. does, how big wars are set off by "little" incidents — the shooting of an archduke, the crossing of a boundary line, the most trivial or devious move — and it simply cannot afford to take overt action that might escalate into full-scale atomic warfare.

As Teddy Roosevelt would have discovered had he lived long enough, the bigger a stick you carry, the softer you damn well have to speak.

We are all "weaker" than we were before atomic fission, not stronger. We have less sovereignty, not more. We have fewer options open to us, for some of the traditional routes have been closed — if anyone tried to use them, both they and their "enemies" could be blown sky-high. This is the meaning of all that delicate jockeying in the Middle East; too much power applied, and everybody would lose.

Nuclear weapons have made nationalism obsolete, but we have not yet awakened to that fact of life. We cannot prevent them from spreading to third- and fourth-rate powers, who may feel they have less to lose by unleashing the bombs.

By having the most to lose, the mightiest nation becomes, in a real sense, the weakest in the world.

Hims, Hers Do Differ

Says HAL BOYLE

Sex today has become something of a guessing game.

The two sexes have become so outwardly similar that when boy meets girl for the first time it takes them a while to figure out who is who and which is what. If they are both near-sighted, this process may take days.

Such confusion is natural, considering that so many women are determined to dress, talk and think as much like men as possible. This is a real compliment to men, of course, since imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

But this flattery has gone a step too far when it results in situations that make it all but impossible to tell the sexes apart.

Fortunately, however, there are still ways for the discerning eye to separate the hims from the hers. Here are a few:

Does it like to loll in a bathtub full of bubbles? It's a woman. Does it still have soap in one ear an hour after taking a morning shower? It's a man.

If it likes practical jokes, it's masculine. If it hates practical jokes but is willing to marry a practical joker, it's feminine.

Does it like to spend hours just sitting and looking hands and dreaming? That's the lassie. Would it rather have its hands free? That's the laddie.

Does it bulge in only one place? Probably a fat man. Does it bulge in several places? Undoubtedly a fat woman.

Can it give offhand the batting average of Carl Yastrzemski, the Boston Red Sox outfielder? That's a male sports fan. Does it think that Yastrzemski is probably an obscure Polish dress designer? That's the sports fan's wife.

Benson Keeps Index Finger Near Button

OTTAWA (Special)—The next month will be crucial for Finance Minister Edgar Benson. If the cost of living index takes another dramatic jump during July, the amiable finance minister is going to have to make some difficult decisions.

He is going to have to decide whether the inevitable political storm that would result and wait another few months in anticipation of long-awaited evidence that the turning point has been reached in the fight against inflation.

DRASTIC STEPS

Or, he is going to have to decide to take drastic and immensely unpopular action, such as imposition of personal credit restrictions and possibly even wage-and-price controls.

Benson, of course, has more sophisticated measures of economic performance than the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' monthly price index. The point is, however, that the index is a measure — probably the measure by which the majority of the public judges economic performance — and for that reason Benson and the Trudeau government are going to have to make their decision in a matter of days, not weeks or months, if the index takes another dramatic jump.

WHEAT LEAP

The index for June, published Thursday, showed a jump in the cost of living of almost one full point. Conservative members of the opposition tried unsuccessfully to force an emergency debate in the Commons on the basis of the latest increase.

Former Tory cabinet minister George Hees pointed out that if the index keeps climbing at current rates, the cost of living in the country will have risen 10 per cent by the year's end. Already this year, he said, the cost of living has risen 3 per cent.

WARNING SOUNDED

Benson reacted to the latest increase by warning Canadians that they can't expect to take more out of the economy than they are putting in. What he was saying, in effect, is that current wage demands and the resulting increases in prices are unacceptable because productivity has not been increasing proportionately.

Asked by a Liberal backbencher if he was considering meeting with the provinces to discuss imposition of credit controls, the finance minister replied that he had no "immediate plans" to do so.

FIRST LINE

The fact is, however, that credit controls would undoubtedly be the government's first line of action if the decision to impose tougher anti-inflation measures is taken.

In his spring budget, Benson warned that the performance of the Canadian economy was in a "dangerous" state and that what happened in the United States, Bank of Canada Governor Louis St. Laurent disclosed last week that Canada has not done as well as the United States in some aspects of its fight against inflation.

In view of the fact that there is growing pressure in the U.S. at the present time for credit restrictions, the chances that Canada can get by without further unpopular financial restraints are gloomy, indeed, even if current exorbitant interest rates are continued.

Benson is only too aware that every week the current inflationary spiral continues unchecked, the number of casualties increases. First to be hit were those on fixed incomes — the pensioners in particular — and now with high interest rates and the chartered banks rationing credit, almost everyone is feeling the pinch.

Hopefully, the restraints already imposed by the finance minister will be reflected in some concrete way within the next month. If not, Benson is going to be forced to take some of those immensely unpopular steps.

Fast-Moving Trudeau Hops West, After Fun

By ALEX FARRELL

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau flew west Sunday for a week-long first hand look of the problems of the Prairies after a day of fun in this town known as the Venice of Quebec.

In a fast-moving, holiday-like visit, seen by more than 40,000 people, the prime minister was the official starter and an intent spectator at the Grand Prix race in the Valleyfield International Regatta.

He also opened a new federal building, kissed scores of women, shook hundreds of hands in a motorcade along city streets of this community 30 miles southwest of Montreal. He took a look at the latest local recreational facilities and dined in on a summer dance in a military drill hall.

He later left by helicopter for Dorval International Airport where he took a government three-star aircraft for a three-hour flight to Churchill, Man.

In six days in the West, he is scheduled to visit 32 places in three provinces and travel about 5,000 miles. Many meetings but no major speeches are planned. He will spend the first day, today, in northern Manitoba, visiting the Hudson Bay port of Churchill and the nickel mining town of Thompson.

Maycock Installed

G. H. Maycock was installed as president of the Victoria Rotary Club in ceremonies recently at the Empress Hotel. J. N. Curry and J. R. McKennie are vice-presidents; H. J. Kennedy, treasurer, and J. V. Svendsen, secretary.

New directors are K. D. McRae, R. A. Upward, J. A. Baines, Dr. G. H. Thompson, D. E. Robinson and G. B. McGillivray.

Farmers Protest

SASKATOON (CP) — Almost 2,500 tractors took to Saskatchewan roads Monday as farmers protested low wheat prices and the lack of a market for wheat crops.

Union officials said the protests would continue throughout the week.

'We Stay,' Tories Say

By MARJORIE NICHOLS

OTTAWA (Special) — The possibility that members of Parliament will spend the rest of the summer at their desks appears nearer reality as the Commons today moves into the second week of a bitter rules fight with no signs of a compromise in sight.

As the Ottawa temperature soared to 85 degrees Monday and MPs droned on inside the House about the government's complicated and controversial proposal to schedule Commons business, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield called a press conference to say that the Conservatives are prepared to maintain their opposition, "indefinitely."

WHICH SIDE?

Stanfield was asked which side he thought would cave in first, government or opposition, and thus enable weary MPs to leave for a summer vacation that was scheduled to start June 27.

"We have no intention of caving in," he replied, adding that the opposition believes its position "has been strengthened morally and tactically during the last week."

The Conservative leader said there was no question of his party being forced to drop its determined fight because of lack of stamina among MPs.

SMALL PART

"We have used only a small part of our resources to date," he said. "We are prepared to sit very nearly indefinitely. The rest of the summer, if necessary."

Stanfield said those leading the fight against the proposals, which would give the government more expeditious methods of closure, have been encouraged by two developments during the last week.

First, he said, is that the government bowed to pressure and withdrew government House leader Donald MacDonald's motion in favor of the motion of the Commons procedure committee.

RULES POINT

Second, he said, is that the opposition has succeeded in convincing even the government side that rule 75-C — the most contentious of the three proposed rules, 75-A, 75-B, and 75-C — is a only of limited use to the government in the form in which it has been introduced.

Under the committee proposal now under debate, Stanfield said, the government could invoke 75-C, which would enable the government to put through a bill with only two full days of debate, only if the opposition parties failed to agree on rule 75-B.

HOUSE LEADERS

Under rule 75-B, when a majority of the House leaders of the various parties reach agreement on the allocation of time for debate, a minister may put the appropriate motion without notice and have it voted on within 10 hours.

The government House leaders motion, which was withdrawn in favor of the committee proposal, would have required that the majority of House leaders include the government representative. A motion now before the House would refer the procedure report back to committee so that 75-B could be amended to include this requirement.

CAUCUS TO COME

Although indications are that the opposition parties would drop the fight and accept 75-A and 75-B if the government withdrew 75-C, Stanfield said the question has not yet been put to the Conservative caucus. The opposition leader reiterated his position that even with 75-C the government could not operate efficiently without the aid of the opposition parties and that the proposal is therefore unnecessary.

KEY TO HOUSE

Co-operation is the key to an efficient House of Commons, Stanfield said, and without it, the government would be frustrated in trying to put its business through Parliament even if it was armed with the controversial 75-C rule.

DDT Debate Complicated

BOSTON (UPI) — International Health officials debated Monday on whether the insecticide DDT was protecting the world from malaria or setting a time bomb in the genes of future generations.

"As long as no other pesticide is known which is as cheap and as effective as DDT, and as long as DDT's side effects are not known, then in malarious countries it is better to die in old age of cancer than as a baby of malaria," Dr. Julie Saroso of Indonesia told delegates to the 22nd World Health Assembly of the World Health Organization.

Evidence that DDT exposure caused cancer in fourth or fifth generations during animal research were cited by a delegate from the Netherlands, who said Sweden had forbidden the use of DDT. The Netherlands is seen to follow, he added.

In 1955, the World Health Assembly, meeting in Mexico, ordered a world wide attack on malaria and set a 10-year goal of total eradication. Nearly 15 years later, delegates say the goal is nearly attainable but their expectations were unreasonable.

"The danger for man does not appear so clear that it justifies the stopping of use of DDT" in malaria-plagued areas, Dr. M. G. Candau of Brazil, director-general, told newsmen. "If it is easy for some countries to stop using DDT, it is practically impossible for other countries to do so."

Chemical substitutes for the controversial insecticide are available but they are more expensive and less powerful, according to an Indian delegate.

Wheat Pact Bared

OTTAWA (CP) — Minimum wheat prices under the International Grains Arrangement are to be temporarily suspended, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Monday.

Pepin was answering opposition questions about an international conference in Washington last week called to consider the problem of price-cutting in the world wheat market.

Exporters "who have been doing well" recognized that those who have not been doing so well have the right to adjust their prices in order to become competitive, he said.

"That applies particularly to the United States and Canada. This means, I would think, that minimum prices under the IGA are to be temporarily suspended."

However, established minimums remain an indication of what is fair and reasonable, Pepin said. "That applies to the Canadian wheat farmers and the Canadian government."

Opposition MPs said it seems clear that world wheat exporters have not agreed to abide by international floor prices and the Western Canadian farmer will suffer.

Western members urged the minister to assure Prairie farmers they will receive at least the minimum prices agreed under the 1958 IGA, with federal price support if necessary.

Victoria FairMood Takes Merchant To Success

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

The audience was applauding before a word was spoken of The Merchant of Venice at the MacPherson Playhouse Monday night.

Thus the mood was set and sustained in Victoria Fair's finest production.

This production as it now stands is positively the best theatre ever produced in Victoria.

The revolving set, the sumptuous costumes straight from a Renaissance painting, gave a lustre to a jewel that correlated with the combined artistry and talents of directors Ralph Allen and Wanda Henshaw, set and costume designers Robert Cochran and Alan Grant. This is not to mention the cast which down to the last waiting-woman and page, was completely at one with the play. Harriet Allen as Portia gave the finest performance of her career. Wearing a blonde wig and stunningly dressed, she was entirely captivating as a playful, flirtatious Portia, sweeping onto the stage with a white kitten in her arms.

The scenes when she unwillingly submits to being wooed by a sensual Moroccan, Gil Bunch, and a foolish snobbish Aragon, Carl Hare, were incredibly funny. Yet later in the courtroom she showed she could be an impassioned advocate for mercy. Neil Munro's Bassanio was a fitting match for Portia in wit and gaiety.

MODERN SHYLOCK

Shylock was brilliantly played by Richard Galuppi. His conception was a modern Shylock, the embodiment of rage and latent hatred bred in the ghetto. His savage fury in the courtroom scene was awe-inspiring.

His famous plea for acceptance — "Hath not a Jew eyes?" — and his broken spirit as he accepts defeat by Portia and is spat upon by the Christians were the most poignant moments in an evening of comedy.

MANY THINGS

There were so many things, the pairs of young lovers, an enchanting Jessica, Marti Maraden, an incredibly comic Old Gobbo, Carl Hare, a sympathetic Antonio, Anthony Jenkins, a delightful song sung by Christopher Butterfield, formerly of Kings College, Cambridge, and specially composed for this production by Christine Chedder.

Whatever you think of theatre, whatever you think of Shakespeare, set aside one evening this summer to go to the Merchant of Venice.

It runs again at 8 p.m. today at the MacPherson.

Dealer Files Appeal In Car Lawsuit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A North Vancouver automobile dealership Monday filed notice of appeal against a $2,705 judgment won by a man who bought a new Ford Cortina automobile from the firm last April.

The B.C. Supreme Court ordered Ritchie Mercury Sales to pay Thomas Lightburn the sum after hearing he had to take the car back to the company 17 times for repairs.

In ordering the purchase price refunded and the sales contract cancelled, Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan found that the firm breached the contract by failing to provide a workable car capable of sustained performance.

In the notice of appeal, the company claims the judge erred in holding there was a breach of contract.

The case will be heard by the court of appeal, but no date has been set.

El Salvador Lashes Out With Warplanes, Invaders

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — El Salvadoran warplanes bombed eight Honduran cities and Tegucigalpa International airport Monday and its troops launched a two-pronged invasion into this neighboring Central American republic, Honduras said.

Army headquarters said Salvadoran troops crossed the border at El Poy, striking into the northwestern corner of the nation. Another Salvadoran force was reported moving down the Pan American Highway into the eastern section of the nation.

AIRPORT BOMBED

No reports of casualties or damage were immediately available but Honduran authorities said they expected losses among the civilian population in the eight provincial towns which they reported came under aerial attack.

Three bombs were dropped on the international airport, headquarters of the Honduran air force, by F51 Mustang aircraft, according to the Honduran authorities.

NO PHONES, LIGHTS
Reliable sources said the Honduran army immediately ordered dispatch of combat aircraft to chase the attacking planes and to attack Salvadoran air force installations.

"It was a premeditated and treacherous attack, something like Pearl Harbor," a Honduran spokesman said in Washington.

"In Mexico City, the Central Telephone Exchange said all telephone communications were out to Honduras and El Salvador and that both countries were without electricity."

A UPI reporter in Tegucigalpa said he could hear bomb explosions as planes flew overhead. The city was immediately blacked out.

The sources said the attack on the Honduran air force base began about 6:30 p.m. when a Salvadoran C47 appeared at 8,000 feet followed by two fighters.

The outbreak signalled further deterioration in efforts by the foreign minister of Guatemala, Costa Rica and Nicaragua to negotiate the differences between the two nations.

Monday night's charges at the OAS were made minutes after the organization's council named a seven-member commission to investigate previous border clashes between the two countries.

The commission went immediately into executive session.

Ra Settles, Lists

From AP-Reuters

OSLO, Norway — Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl told an amateur radio operator Monday the stern section of his reed boat Ra was sinking still deeper and the craft was beginning to list slightly.

The operator said the next two or three days might be decisive for the fate of the voyage on which Heyerdahl is seeking to prove that ancient Egyptians could have crossed the Atlantic in similar vessels.

But Astronauts Happy, Ready

'Fear Not Unknown to Us'

From AP-Reuters

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — Astronaut Neil Armstrong said Monday the Apollo 11 crew is "happy and ready to fly" to the moon for man's first walk on the lunar surface.

He said in a televised news conference that "fear is not an unknown emotion to us" but "we really have no fear in launching out on this expedition."

Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins are to blast off for the moon Wednesday. Late Sunday Armstrong and Aldrin are to land on the moon.

willing and ready to attempt to achieve our national goal" of landing on the moon.

The crew had confidence in its equipment.

"We're happy and ready to fly," Armstrong said.

Asked whether he agreed with an assessment that the Apollo 11 had an 80-per-cent chance of success, Armstrong said: "I think that's a reasonable estimate in terms of accomplishing everything we set out to do."

But he said odds on going to the moon and coming safely back home are "far greater than that."

This would be true even if he would meet Indians during later stop overs today and Wednesday at Alert Bay, Vancouver, and Kamloops.

He said he was not too surprised at Tsartlip Chief Philip Pasi's refusal to meet him in Victoria, because he had already spent some four hours in Ottawa going over the new policy statement with him.

While the phasing-out of the department is expected to take five years, it is also expected that the process of transferring land control to the Indians will take longer.

Legislative and constitutional bases of discrimination would be removed and Indians would obtain services through the same channels and agencies as other Canadians, according to the policy statement.

Space Station Russian Aim?

MOSCOW (UPI) — The unmanned spaceship Luna 15 neared the halfway point on its mysterious mission to the moon Monday three days ahead of Apollo 11's scheduled blastoff. Some doubts were expressed that the Soviet vehicle would try to land.

One main possibility, according to western space observers, was that the Soviets were attempting to make Luna 15 the first part of a large orbiting space station for studying the moon and observing stars and planets.

At Cape Kennedy, veteran German rocket scientist Wernher von Braun said Monday the Soviet spacecraft should reach the moon Thursday morning — a day after Apollo 11's astronaut blast off.

Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Centre which developed Apollo's Saturn 5 launcher, said at a news conference it is a reasonable guess that the Russian probe will attempt to land on the moon, scoop up a soil sample and fly back to Earth.

"We have one more piece of information from NORAD that this seems to be a rather slow trajectory and the landing on the moon is not expected before Thursday morning."

Some observers said Luna 15 was a "mooncooper" which would land, dig up a few ounces of lunar soil and return to Earth a few days before the Apollo 11 crew could accomplish a similar feat.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory in England, said however he did not believe Luna 15 would bring back moon soil.

Lovell, whose observatory has picked up signals from Luna 15, said he expected the Russians to recover samples from the moon with similar spacecrafts but not before the Apollo 11 mission.

"It is unlikely the Russians can do this by the testing of systems in one exercise," Lovell said. "It looks as if the Russians have had trouble and their program has fallen about a year behind schedule."

Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny suggested the possibility of an orbiting space station around the moon last week during a visit to Moscow by U.S. astronaut Frank Borman.

The possibility of a robot-like "mooncooper" was rumored in Moscow six weeks before Luna 15 was launched Sunday and some unconfirmed reports said two rockets had blown up on the launching pad in attempts to obtain moon soil samples.

at least one of the Czechoslovakians was shot and possibly killed. The others were captured.

The West Germans said five persons were in the truck, but the Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported later than seven persons were in the truck. The news agency made no mention of any shooting, stating only that the seven had been detained.

West German guards, alerted by a burst of machinegun fire, watched through binoculars as the truck sped into the cross point area and then crashed to a halt against a thick pole at the barricade. Guards on the Czechoslovak side sprayed the vehicle with machinegun fire as it approached the barrier and crashed.

One of the occupants of the truck was carried off on a stretcher with a blanket covering his face, indicating he was dead, West German guards said. They saw only four others being led away at gunpoint.

Native 'Nitty-Gritty'

All Services Continuing

There will be no special services for Canada's native people, but they will not lose the federal services they now get when their affairs are turned over to the provinces.

The comment was made by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, following an hour-long meeting with Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, who is on a cross-Canada tour to explain the federal government's new Indian policy to provincial government and Indian leaders.

Mr. Black said Mr. Chretien had explained the "nitty gritty" of Ottawa's emerging transfer of Indians to provincial jurisdiction.

POLICY AIMS

Mr. Black, who is responsible for Indian matters in B.C., said Mr. Chretien outlined a policy which would leave Indians "the same as any other citizen" but under which special care by the federal government "should not be diminished in any way."

Mr. Chretien was snubbed by the Indian leaders he hoped to meet in Victoria, but said he would meet Indians during later stop overs today and Wednesday at Alert Bay, Vancouver, and Kamloops.

He said he was not too surprised at Tsartlip Chief Philip Pasi's refusal to meet him in Victoria, because he had already spent some four hours in Ottawa going over the new policy statement with him.

agents and developers will move in to grab land protected previously by the Crown.

While they have agreed with the phasing out of the Indian Act, they have protested that the move is too sudden and too high-handed, with too little protection for those Indians not yet ready for complete integration and self-government.

Vancouver Island Indians voted Saturday to boycott Monday's meeting, after Mr. Pasi said he had only a telephone summons at short notice to the meeting.

Mr. Chretien replied Monday, "Last week they were angry because I didn't meet them, and now this week they are angry."

Trudeau Visit

Indian Almost Crying

By DAVE McINTOSH

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday that Canadians should not take a dog-in-the-manger attitude toward northern development.

He told a town meeting here that he cannot see what is wrong with the American oil tanker Manhattan trying to find a northwest passage to Alaska this summer.

This is a case of a job being done by a foreign concern or not being done at all he said.

Trudeau said his government is not hostile to foreign capital but that it tries to make sure it operates for the benefit of Canadians.

If Canada wanted to replace foreign capital with its own, savings would have to be enforced and the standard of living lowered.

Hazard-Street Triggers Urgent Request to B.C.

DUNCAN — City council Monday night decided to ask the provincial government to carry out improvements to Government Street, and the provincial highways department will be asked if it would accept a partial payment. The city's full share is $35,000 and Ald. Tom Kilpatrick said, "I beg to get it down now."

Ald. Jim Sanche's stressed, "Let's do it before somebody gets killed." It is hoped the project can be done before school opens.

Council has been pressing the government for the improvements on that street because of hazardous conditions for many school children.

Government Street is one link of the Lake Cowichan road and it is being used by heavy trucks. Ald. Martin Lukaitis remarked the provincial government should pay "the full share" and be asked for legal advice first.

LEGAL ADVICE

Ald. Saunders reminded him that the government had chosen the city's share and legal advice would not alter the proportion of the cost sharing.

A request from Duncan lawyer, Frederick S. Green of behalf of Kelly Douglas and Company Ltd. asked for rezoning of an area of land at the former Super Value store, from shopping centre commercial district to highway commercial use to facilitate a General Motors dealership.

A complete renovation of the building, to cost between $40,000 and $50,000, is being suggested by the firm. Council referred the request to the city's advisory planning commission.

"Close all garbage dumps," suggested Ald. Lukaitis. He told council he was informed shortly before Monday night's meeting by a North Cowichan alderman that the latter municipality would begin garbage incineration at the end of September.

Ald. Lukaitis recommended the city dump be closed because it is a health menace.

Mayor Jim Quail announced after the council meeting that he will seek re-election in this December's civic election.

Playhouse Goes Begging

DUNCAN — Cowichan and district school board trustees are looking for a buyer for a child's playhouse.

The question arose Monday evening when secretary-treasurer G. F. Dyson reported that Monday was the closing day for purchase tenders for a 12-foot playhouse built by Cowichan Senior secondary vocational students, but there were no tenders submitted.

Materials for the building cost $360. "The playhouse goes with construction 12 which is the final course in framing," said Eric Lewis, District Superintendent of Schools.

"We are finding we have an excess of green houses, garages and playhouses built by students in B.C. Some districts actually build a one or two-bedroom house and sell it."

The board agreed to call for tenders again, re-wording the call to make the board's purpose clearer.

Newspaper Turns Profit

NANAIMO — Two young businessmen have reversed the old joke — this is a non-profit business but it wasn't intended to be that way.

David Forbes and Tim Chisholm, Nanaimo 14-year-olds, started a newspaper last year, riding on the crest of bathtub race mania.

Their radically-printed paper was an immediate financial success, with about $15 profit from each of the first seven printings.

For the first six issues last summer the profits were donated to the Shriners' crippled children's fund and the Christmas profits went to the Vancouver Island camp school for special children.

"We were told that we should keep some of the profit ourselves, because we work so hard putting the paper together so the printing for Bathtub Week will go to us," David said.

The 17-page Getsettered periodical is printed through facilities of the Fraternal Order of the Eagles.

Circulation has increased from an original 150 papers to 250 in the eighth printing.

Argument for Meters?

Water Use Spurts in June

NANAIMO — City council was told Monday night that water use in June was more than 92,500,000 gallons, a 27,000,000-gallon increase over May consumption.

Ald. Gordon MacKay, who gave the figures, said, "This is what makes people think of having water meters."

The water bill within the city in May was $14,583, and for June, it was $16,473.

Mr. MacKay said the greatest regular demands of only $600,000.

Ald. MacKay reported that a boat-launching ramp at Brechin Point might be ready for the bathtub race Sunday, but would definitely be ready for the best part of the tourist season.

Communications to municipalities from Premier Bennett and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell about co-operation between municipalities and regional districts drew comment from aldermen.

Ald. Gertrude Hall said Nanaimo district was "one of the smoothest running in the province." She predicted regional districts would increasingly remove municipalities and would prove to be the solution to many existing problems.

Ald. MacKay said he wanted more information about regional aims and claimed many of the functions of regional districts were governed by rumor rather than by stated fact.

"I feel you don't understand the regional board," Ald. Hall said. She offered to arrange for regional board chairman Don Beaton to meet with council to explain the board's functions and aims.

Ald. Ted Jenkinson said the districts were duplicating costs already borne by city rate-payers and the districts were being used to rid the provincial government of responsibilities such as providing ambulance and transit services.

He said in larger cities, B.C. Hydro was subsidizing transit systems but was not doing so in smaller municipalities.

City council refused to meet with a group attempting to provide a performing arts centre in the old curling rink, which is slated for demolition.

Bamberton lifeboat continues search near reef, right, scene of tragedy

Four Drown, Six Survive Capsizing Shore, Sea Rescuers Emerge in Tragedy

TOFINO — A Newfoundland-born fisherman, his 16-year-old grandson and two people known by name only and believed to be tourists emerged Monday night as the quiet heroes of a boating tragedy which claimed at least three and probably four lives Saturday night.

The fisherman was Ernest Edwards, 68, of Ucluelet who, with his grandson Paul, pulled six people into their craft The Tribune from turbulent waters off the Green Point area of Long Beach.

The two people believed to be tourists are known to authorities only as Bill Griffiths and George Kirkendale.

The armed forces Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver said Monday it was a telephone call from Mr. Griffiths shortly after 9 p.m. Saturday that touched off the rescue operation. A spokesman said nothing more was known of Mr. Griffiths, except that he did not appear to be a resident of the area.

RCMP in Tofino said Mr. Kirkendale had told them Saturday night he had seen the 16-foot open boat in distress, and since it was growing dark, had lit a fire to guide rescuers. The police spokesman said the Edwards were guided towards the spot by a fire on shore.

He said he believed Mr. Kirkendale was in a camper on Long Beach. No other information was available on Mr. Kirkendale, the spokesman said.

Drowned when the boat overturned in rough water near some sea lions on a submerged rock were:

Donald Hillier, 41, owner of a general store in Ucluelet; his son, Geoffrey Todd, three and Tim Garnett, five, of Mill Bay.

Still missing Monday night and presumed drowned is Michael Blair Garnett, 15, of Mill Bay.

Funeral for the Hilliers will be held 2 p.m. Wednesday in St. Aidan's Anglican church. Funeral for the Garnett boy will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Mill Bay United Church.

In improved condition Monday night in Tofino hospital, recovering from shock and exposure were: Grant Garnett, principal of Mount Prevost junior secondary school, Duncan; his wife, Lois; their sons, David, 13; Steven, 10 and Murray, nine and a family friend, Ken Norrie, 14, of Duncan.

The boat which capsized belonged to Mr. Hillier, RCMP said. The Hilliers and the Garnetts were close friends, they said, since Mr. Garnett had once been principal at Bamfield and Ucluelet.

Fisherman Edwards and his grandson could not be reached to tell of their part in the rescue. They had returned to the fishing grounds.

RCMP in Tofino said the boat was capsized by a wave hitting it broadside. A spokesman said there was apparently only one lifejacket among the 10 passengers, and it was worn by the drowned three-year-old.

Meanwhile, a body picked up by a fishboat near Tofino over the weekend was identified Monday as American seaman Eugene Beauchamp, who fell overboard from the U.S. Coast Guard ice-breaker Staten Island July 8.

Overdue Vessel Search Target

Search continued Monday for a 30-foot troller reported overdue Sunday along the northwest coast of Vancouver Island.

A Search and Rescue official said the fishing boat called CO2 carried Billy George, 60, and his wife and that "possibly they went south to fish along the Island."

The Coast Guard cutter Racer, searching in the area, also went into Quinsino Sound, the CO2's home port, to investigate an oil slick there.

The RCMP and Air West aided in the search.

Work Week Cut Feared

Trollers Protest Weekend Ban On Georgia Commercial Fishing

Photography

By HELEN MITCHELL

CAMPBELL RIVER — Free lance trollers Dan Wilson and Art Runacres patrolled the Campbell River waterfront Saturday and Sunday in protest of the newly-imposed weekend closure of the Gulf and Strait of Georgia to commercial trollers.

Commercial fishing by trollers in these waters has been curtailed from 6 p.m. Friday until 6 a.m. Sundays when only sports fishermen are allowed to fish.

Following posting of the closure notice Friday afternoon, about 25 Island trollers from Deep Bay to Campbell River met in Deep Bay at a hurriedly-called meeting Friday evening and agreed to take action to bring the matter to the attention of the public.

Mr. Wilson said: "This move is supposed to give the sports fishermen a more equal share of the fishing in the Gulf, but already the figures show that the sports fishermen take most of the fish and their number is increasing each year."

He also said that many Canadian and American sports fishermen are indignant at the closure. "We haven't heard one sports fisherman who is in agreement with the closure," he said.

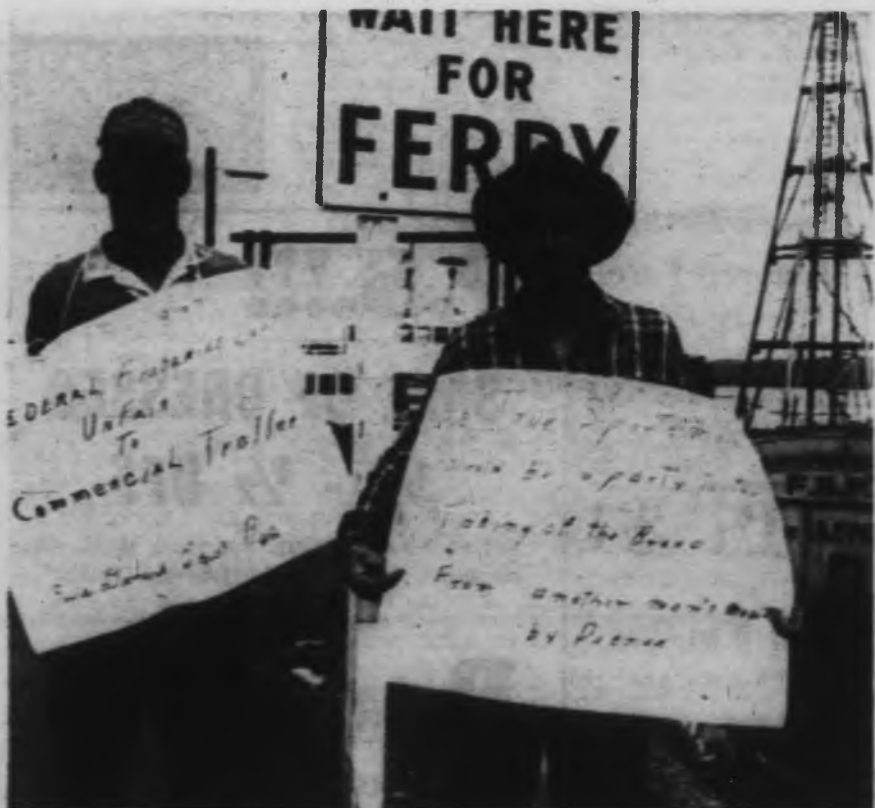

Mr. Runacres said: "It's not right to legislate the living of one person away, to give it to somebody else for amusement."

"However," he went on, "we want to make it clear that we have nothing against the sports fishing boats."

"We've always got along very well with the operators of pleasure craft and feel that both groups of fishermen should be allowed to continue fishing side by side."

Both men say that the closure, coupled with natural restrictions imposed by wind and weather, will seriously curtail the work week of the trollers.

They say that there are many men on this part of the coast who make their living in this manner because poor health or disabilities of one kind or another prevent them from taking over, heavier jobs.

Globe-Trotting By Sail Boat Over—Maybe

MAPLE BAY — Brig. Miles Smeeton and his wife Bea said Saturday that after their recent round-the-world sailing voyage, they have no new trips in mind but might be enticed if "something interesting" came along.

The Victorians returned June 30 from a three-year voyage in their 31-year-old sail boat Tzu Hang.

"After each voyage, we always say this is definitely the last trip, but now that we have been back two weeks, we don't know," Mrs. Smeeton said.

"We are not planning another, but it all depends on whether or not we get a chance to do something interesting. We are planning to go to Calgary where we have some property to see about building a house."

Brig. Smeeton said he thought "the time has come to cut down on long cruises."

The Smeetons arrived in Sansum Narrows late Saturday to return a burgee belonging to the Maple Bay Yacht Club which they had flown from the Tzu Hang on their journey.

Well over 30 local boats and three Maple Bay Marina tugs escorted the Smeetons to the Maple Bay Yacht club, where they are honorary members.

The Smeetons presented the burgee to the club to be framed and were given a new one to fly.

Courtenay Man Killed As Car Leaves Road

COURTENAY — A 19-year-old resident of Dyke Road was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving went off the Island Highway about three miles north of Courtenay.

Dead is Glen Mitchell. Two passengers in the car, Valerie Crammer, 20, and John A. Sutton, 43, were seriously injured and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox. Authorities there said their condition Monday morning was "somewhat improved."

But Astronauts Happy, Ready

'Fear Not Unknown to Us'

From AP-Reuters
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP)—Astronaut Neil Armstrong said Monday the Apollo 11 crew is "happy and ready to fly" to the moon for man's first walk on the lunar surface.

He said in a televised news conference that "fear is not an unknown emotion to us" but "we really have no fear in launching out on this expedition."

Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins are to blast off for the moon Wednesday. Late Sunday Armstrong and Aldrin are to land on the moon.

The three appeared at a unusual news conference to field questions. A panel of reporters was seated about 15 miles away from their training headquarters. The U.S. space agency is attempting to isolate the space men as much as possible from the possibility of contamination from human germs.

Armstrong, Apollo commander, said "after a decade of planning, hard work, we are villing and ready to attempt to achieve our national goal" of landing on the moon.

The crew had confidence in its equipment.

"We're happy and ready to fly," Armstrong said.

Asked whether he agreed with an assessment that the Apollo 11 had an 80-per-cent chance of success, Armstrong said: "I think that's a reasonable estimate in terms of accomplishing everything we set out to do."

But he said odds on going to the moon and coming safely

back home are "far greater than that."

Aldrin said if the lunar module can land successfully on the moon Monday, the entire mission will have been a success.

This would be true even if the mission were to fail.

Space Station Russian Aim?

MOSCOW (UPI)—The unmanned spaceship Luna 15 neared the halfway point on its mysterious mission to the moon Monday three days ahead of Apollo 11's scheduled blastoff. Some doubts were expressed that the Soviet vehicle would try to land.

One main possibility, according to western space observers, was that the Soviets were attempting to make Luna 15 the first part of a large orbiting space station for studying the moon and observing stars and planets.

At Cape Kennedy, veteran German rocket scientist Werner von Braun said Monday the Soviet spacecraft should reach the moon Thursday morning—a day after Apollo 11's astronauts blast off.

REASONABLE GUESS

Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Centre which developed Apollo's Saturn 5 launcher, said at a news conference it is a reasonable guess that the Russian probe will attempt to land on the moon, scoop up a soil sample and fly back to Earth.

"We have one more piece of information from NORAD that this seems to be a rather slow trajectory and the landing on the moon is not expected before Thursday morning," he said.

Some observers said Luna 15 was a "mosaic" of parts which would land, dig up a few ounces of lunar soil and return to Earth a few days before the Apollo 11 crew could accomplish a similar feat.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory in England, said however he did not believe Luna 15 would bring back moon soil.

Lovell, whose observatory has picked up signals from Luna 15, said he expected the Russians to recover samples from the moon with similar spacecrafts but not before the Apollo 11 mission.

"It is unlikely the Russians can do this by the testing of systems in one exercise," Lovell said. "It looks as if the Russians have had trouble and their program has fallen about a year behind schedule."

Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny suggested the possibility of an orbiting space station around the moon last week during a visit to Moscow by U.S. astronaut Frank Borman.

Podgorny told Borman the Soviets were contemplating the construction of such a space station but he gave no timetable for it.

EXPLOSIONS?

The possibility of a robot-like "mooncrawler" was rumored in Moscow six weeks before Luna 15 was launched Sunday and some unconfirmed reports said two rockets had blown up on the launching pad in attempts to obtain moon soil samples.

Moscow newspapers gave identical front page display Monday to a brief official announcement which said Luna 15 had been launched. There were no published details and the Moscow press made no mention of the preparations for the Apollo 11 launch.

Native 'Nitty-Gritty'

SERVICES CONTINUE

There will be no special services for Canada's native people, but they will not lose the federal services they now get when their affairs are turned over to the provinces.

The comment was made by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, following an hour-long meeting with Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, who is on a cross-Canada tour to explain the federal government's new Indian policy to provincial government and Indian leaders.

Mr. Black said Mr. Chretien had explained the "nitty gritty" of Ottawa's emerging transfer of Indians to provincial jurisdiction.

POLICY AIMS

Mr. Black, who is responsible for Indian matters in B.C., said Mr. Chretien outlined a policy which would leave Indians "the same as any other citizen" but under which special care by the federal government "should not be diminished in any way."

Mr. Chretien was snubbed by the Indian leaders he hoped to meet in Victoria, but said he would meet Indians during later stopovers today and Wednesday at Alert Bay, Vancouver and Kamloops.

He said he was not too surprised at Teatlip Chief Philip Paul's refusal to meet him in Victoria, because he had already spent some four hours in Ottawa going over the new policy statement with him.

INTERIM MEASURE

The policy, announced June 25 in the House of Commons, would see the Indian Act repealed and legislative steps taken to enable Indians to control their own lands and to acquire title to them. It would also see funds made available for Indian economic development as an interim measure.

While the phasing-out of the department is expected to take five years, it is also expected that the process of transferring land control to the Indians will take longer.

Legislative and constitutional bases of discrimination would be removed and Indians would obtain services through the same channels and agencies as other Canadians, according to the policy statement.

CULTURAL LOSS

Indian leaders have complained that by becoming part of the provincial education system they will lose the cultural advantages of Indian schools. They also say Indian youngsters may be unable to compete in the system, and that there will be more school dropouts.

Some also fear real estate agents and developers will move in to grab land protected previously by the Crown.

While they have agreed with the phasing out of the Indian Act, they have protested that the move is too sudden and too high-handed, with too little protection for those Indians not yet ready for complete integration and self-government.

Vancouver Island Indians voted Saturday to boycott Monday's meeting, after Mr. Paul said he had only a telephone summons at short notice to the meeting.

Mr. Chretien replied Monday, "last week they were angry because I didn't meet them, and now this week they are angry

Trudeau Visit

Indian Almost Crying

By DAVE MCINTOSH

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday that Canadians should not take a dog-in-the-manger attitude toward northern development. (See also Page 31.)

He told a town meeting here that he cannot see what is wrong with the American oil tanker Manhattan trying to find a northwest passage to Alaska this summer.

This is a case of a job being done by a foreign concern or not being done at all he said.

Trudeau said his government is not hostile to foreign capital but that it tries to make sure it operates for the benefit of Canadians.

If Canada wanted to replace foreign capital with its own, savings would have to be enforced and the standard of living lowered.

FORGET, FORGIVE

The prime minister also told a standing-room-only crowd of about 300 in the community hall that Canada cannot survive if it does not forget and forgive a lot of the past.

He was replying to an elderly Indian woman, Mrs. Clara Pratt, who was almost in tears as she said: "All too often our grievances are crumpled up and thrown into the basket."

Trudeau said that in Canadian history whites had taken land from Indians and the English had taken land from the French.

CAN'T EXIST

"But no nation can exist unless it is prepared to forgive a lot of the past."

The prime minister said he hopes the day will come when Indians and Eskimos are equal to all other Canadians.

These groups would not have special protection any longer but they would be equal under the law.

"We should reach a time when there is no treaty between peoples in Canada."

Whites would always discriminate against Indians if the latter continued to rely on special treaty rights, he said.

Fatality Mars Visit

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—A National Harbors Board employee collapsed and died Monday as he waited for Prime Minister Trudeau's arrival to inspect the grain elevators here.

He was identified as Carl Johnson, in his 60s.

As the prime minister walked toward the elevator an ambulance crew was administering oxygen to Johnson on a gravel roadway.

Trudeau said the incident was a shame. Then he turned to a small group of reporters and said:

"Seeing all this press around is enough to give anybody a heart attack."

Rhodesia Strikes Its London Color

LONDON (Reuters)—Rhodesia formally cut its links with Britain Monday when the flag over its mission near Trafalgar Square was lowered for the last time.

A single policeman stood guard at the entrance to the five-storey Rhodesia House as the green and white flag was unceremoniously lowered by a man who appeared briefly on the roof.

El Salvador Lashes Out With Warplanes, Invaders

TEGUIGALPA, Honduras (UPI)—El Salvadoran warplanes bombed eight Honduran cities and Tegucigalpa International airport Monday and its troops launched a two-pronged invasion into this neighboring Central American republic, Honduras said.

Army headquarters said Salvadoran troops crossed the border at El Poy, striking into the northwestern corner of the nation. Another Salvadoran force was reported moving down the Pan American Highway into the eastern section of the nation.

AIRPORT BOMBED

No reports of casualties or damage were immediately available but Honduran authorities said they expected losses among the civilian populations in the eight provincial towns which they reported came under aerial attack.

Three bombs were dropped on the Tegucigalpa International airport, headquarters of the Honduran air force, by F51 Mustang aircraft, according to the Honduran authorities.

NO PHONES, LIGHTS

Reliable sources said the Honduran army immediately ordered dispatch of combat aircraft to chase the attacking planes and to attack Salvadoran air force installations.

"It was a premeditated and treacherous attack, something like Pearl Harbor," a Honduran spokesman said in Washington.

In Mexico City the Central Telephone Exchange said all telephone communications were out to Honduras and El Salvador and that both countries were without electricity.

A UPI reporter in Tegucigalpa said he could hear bomb explosions as planes flew overhead. The city was immediately blacked out.

The sources said the attack on the Honduran air force base began about 6:30 p.m. when a Salvadoran C47 appeared at 8,000 feet followed by two fighters.

The outbreak signalled further deterioration in efforts by the foreign minister of Guatemala, Costa Rica and Nicaragua to negotiate the differences between the two nations.

POPULATION PROBLEM

Hostilities between the two small republics have their roots in El Salvador's excess population. El Salvador has 3,000,000 residents but Honduras has 2,500,000 but Honduras has seven times as much land. The excess population has resulted in the migration, without proper documents of thousands of Salvadoreans into neighboring Honduras.

The tension reached a boiling point earlier this month in a series of soccer games between national teams.

Monday night's charges at the OAS were made minutes after the organization's council named a seven-member commission to investigate previous border clashes between the two countries.

The commission went immediately into executive session.

Ra Settles, Lists

From AP-Reuters

OSLO, Norway.—Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl told an amateur radio operator Monday the stern section of his reed boat Ra was sinking still deeper and the craft was beginning to list slightly.

The operator said the next two or three days might be decisive for the fate of the voyage on which Heyerdahl is seeking to prove that ancient Egyptians could have crossed the Atlantic in similar vessels.

Flight from Czechoslovakia Stopped

Machineguns Spray Truck

BAYERISCH-EISENSTEIN, Germany (UPI)—A truck carrying Czechoslovak refugees tried to smash through a border crossing into West Germany Monday but was blocked by a steel barrier pole and a hail of machinegun fire.

West German border guards at the Bayerisch-Eisenstein crossing in Bavaria reported at least one of the Czechoslovak was shot and possibly killed. The others were captured.

The West Germans said five persons were in the truck, but the Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported later that seven persons were in the truck. The news agency made no mention of any shooting, stating only that the seven had been detained.

West German guards, alerted by a burst of machinegun fire, watched through binoculars as the truck sped into the cross point area and then crashed to a halt against a thick pole at the barricade. Guards on the Czechoslovak side sprayed the vehicle with machinegun fire as it approached the barrier and crashed.

One of the occupants of the truck was carried off on a stretcher with a blanket covering his face, indicating he was dead. West German guards said they saw only four others being led away at gunpoint.

Boat Deaths 'Shocking'

Problems and dangers of boating brought a warning Monday from Victoria harbormaster Capt. Ronald Newell.

"It's shocking how many lives are lost in boating accidents every year," Capt. Newell said.

"There are so many places in the province where people can operate small boats, and many of them are not aware of the dangers. They don't know the power of the sea. They don't know you should never overload a boat. They don't carry lifejackets, and some who do, don't use them."

Capt. Newell urged small boat operators to visit the Victoria Post Office to see the display of safety equipment set up by the federal transport department.

"The public should take advantage of it," the harbormaster said. "They should see what safety equipment is necessary and they should pick up the free literature."

In the display are lifesaving vests, a bilge pump, a bailer, paddles, fire extinguishers, a loud-hailer, flares, a first aid kit, a heaving line, anchor and ropes.

There are lists of safety equipment for pleasure craft from under 18 feet to 65 feet, and there are charts of the Canadian Buoyage System.

Capt. Newell, president of the Vancouver Island branch of the Naval Officers Association, says the organization has taken on boating safety as a national program.

He said he would like to see the provincial education department take it up as a subject for instruction.

"We'd like to get the message to everybody," he said Monday night.

Union Leader's Claim:

Phone Bugged Before Strike

By DON COLLINS
A Victoria strike leader said Monday that someone began listening in on his home telephone conversations long before the current telephone strike.

At the same time, the B.C. Telephone Co. denied it had "bugged" union phones, but admitted tracing what it termed nuisance calls.

It also said Monday had brought the 12th and 13th cases of sabotage since the strike of 6,600 company workers began June 23. This included the cutting of a long-distance cable in the West Kootenays and the shorting of an open lead wire in the East Kootenays.

Hugh Gow, chairman of the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers' strike committee in Victoria, said: "My own home phone has been monitored for three months."

Similar accusations were made last week.

As an experienced telephone man, he said, he could determine this by a variety of sounds. This included checking noises and "a drop in transmission."

Referring to the phone at Victoria strike headquarters, he told a reporter: "We know this phone you're speaking on right now is under surveillance — is being monitored."

"We can't prove it, but we know it to be so."

Glyn Jones, Victoria information officer for the company, said there had definitely been no "bugging" of phones. He said the company had simply been "tracing and searching" nuisance calls.

A management personnel manning the phones since the strike began have complained of a series of nuisance calls.

Mr. Jones said no words need be spoken to constitute a nuisance call. A call comes under this category if it disrupts work in the company offices, or in any way affects priority services.

"In the event that any action is to be taken, it would be handled by the company's legal and security departments," he said.

Mr. Gow said he looked upon such references to the legal department as "an attempt to harass and scare the people in our federation."

"It can be construed as a threat," he said.

Mr. Jones listed Monday's incidents of damage as:

● The slashing of a cable five miles south of Kaslo, which put three long-distance circuits out of order between Nelson and Kaslo.

● The climbing of a telephone pole six miles east of Cranbrook by someone who attached a foreign wire to the existing open wire, affecting a CBC radio feed to Fernie and Natal.

B.C. Blamed

Fluoride Vote 'Pointless'

There's no point in another fluoridation referendum while B.C. law requires a 60 per cent affirmative vote for it to pass, says Greater Victoria school district's director of dental services.

Dr. David Parfitt expressed the opinion in his annual report to the school board, received by trustees Monday.

Dr. Parfitt reported that he had been a member of a committee preparing for a fluoridation referendum in Victoria. He noted that a fluoridation referendum in Vancouver last winter cost $27,000 and failed, although it got a 55 per cent yes vote.

"The big problem is our provincial legislation," said Dr. Parfitt.

"British Columbia is now one of the few provinces that requires a referendum for fluoridation, and the only province that requires a 60-per cent majority."

"So B.C. lags behind, with only 7 per cent of its population drinking fluoridated water."

"Until the provincial government changes its outlook on this matter, it is felt that it is a waste of effort and money to press for a referendum," said Dr. Parfitt.

The most recent fluoridation votes in Greater Victoria were in Oak Bay in 1965 and 1966. In 1965 the plebiscite failed with a 58.6-per-cent majority. The next year it failed again with 52.1 per cent.

The school board officially supports fluoridation, as does the department of education. The metropolitan health board of Greater Victoria also endorses fluoridation.

'Several Factors' Possible in Death

The death on June 2 of Catherine Josephine Munning, which was believed to have been caused by carbon monoxide poisoning, might have been the result of a number of factors, a preliminary hearing was told Monday.

Lawrence Ernest Munning, 41, charged with non-capital murder of his wife, appeared in Central Magistrate's Court and listened quietly as 10 witnesses testified on behalf of the Crown.

Dr. William B. Hay, assistant pathologist at St.

Joseph's Hospital, told the hearing that the amount of carbon monoxide found in Mrs. Munning's body during the autopsy wasn't sufficient to cause death.

"It was below the lethal level," said Dr. Hay.

He said death occurred "due to a lack of oxygen," but he emphasized that it was difficult to attribute it to any single factor.

Traces of alcohol had also been found in Mrs. Munning's blood, he said. A combination of alcohol and carbon monoxide could have caused the woman's death.

"I cannot determine the cause of her death, other than lack of oxygen," he said.

Victoria psychiatrist Dr.

Leyda Lythgoe told the hearing that Munning had visited her with his wife prior to her death because he was worried about her deteriorating condition.

Dr. Lythgoe said Mrs. Munning was mentally unstable and that she had advised Munning to commit her to a mental institution for psychiatric treatment.

Asked how Mrs. Munning's deteriorating condition was showing, Dr. Lythgoe said that her mood would change from utter depression to exhilaration in a short time.

Such persons often had suicidal tendencies, she said. The hearing will continue today.

Sharp Drop in Log Demand Closes Small Victoria Firm

Baby Born Prematurely After City Collision

A woman who gave birth to a child prematurely after a two-car collision Friday night at Bay and Blanshard is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital, and so is the baby.

Mrs. Chanchal Singh, 841 Bay, was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Chaman, and suffered head injuries.

Lloyd Stewart Bond, 27, of 888 Attree, is in critical condition in the same hospital after undergoing surgery for a fractured skull sustained Saturday at 5:55 p.m. on Station Road near Meaford.

Youth Orchestra

Victorians Go East

Six young Victoria musicians are in rehearsal in Toronto with the National Youth Orchestra, preparing for a two-week concert tour of the Maritimes and eastern Ontario.

Five are with the main orchestra and one with the newly-formed chamber group.

No concerts are scheduled by either group in Western Canada. The National Youth Orchestra's last appearance here was in 1967.

Victoria has traditionally been strongly represented in the orchestra. This year's members of the main group are Velma Ko, 23, and John Rigby, 17, violinists; Norman Abbott, 23, cellist; Alan Denike, 18, bassoonist, and Richard Carwell, 18, trombonist. Ian Franklin, 19, oboist, is a member of the chamber orchestra.

Clifford Evans, former concertmaster of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra who went on to become conductor of the London, Ont., symphony, has been added to the faculty of the youth orchestra.

A sharp drop in the demand for logs was blamed Monday for the temporary shutdown of a small Victoria logging business and a sawmill.

"There's just no log sales," said Edward Longland, vice-president of Longland Brothers Logging and Trucking Ltd., which operates in the Leechtown area.

The company, which employs 20 to 25 workers, has dropped out of the logging picture "until this thing gets settled," Mr. Longland said.

He said he was sure of better days ahead, but didn't really expect the situation to change before September.

He said the Plummer Bay sawmill had closed for the same reason.

There is a possibility other small operations may do the same, he said. Some mills have called annual vacation shut-down at this time because of the lack of business.

PLYWOOD FACT
The Longland company is under contract to Victoria Plywood Ltd.

Mr. Longland said most of the trouble stemmed from the fact that far fewer houses than expected were being constructed in the U.S.

The American market had been counted on for big log sales.

"It's tight money," he said. "I guess you can blame the whole thing on inflation."

Oil-Slick Trouble

Victoria police had hands full rerouting traffic around oil slick on Government Street which dumped motorcyclist Regis Boechard, of CFB Esquimalt, at 4:25 p.m. Sunday. Cyclist was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated for injuries to right leg and arm. Source of oil was unknown. —(William E. John)

Soviet Ship Watched From Air

Surveillance of the Russian vessel Tajmyr off the Queen Charlotte Islands continues into its 42nd day today — by air.

A forces spokesman said Monday that Argus maritime aircraft were continuing the watch for the first time since the shadowing tactics began on June 3. He said the Tajmyr was remaining at the same place.

Ship movement reports show that the destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan, which began the surveillance, and HMCS Yukon, which later relieved it, were in port Monday, but the submarine HMCS Rambo is at sea and its return time is unspecified.

The Tajmyr, said to be an oceanographic vessel, is 19 to 22 miles from shore.

Another Panhandle Resident Unhappy with Esquimalt

Unhappiness of Panhandle property-owners with the municipality they chose to join in favor of sewers, but later said the sewer petition was unnecessary.

After the meeting the mayor said a Panhandle sewer petition which failed to gain the required number of signatures early this year had not been signed by Mr. Fuggle, but had been signed by his wife.

LAST OCTOBER

He said that had the petition last October gone ahead as planned, the sewers would have been in on time.

The letter was received and filed.

THE POSITION

The specific position set forth in that letter, said Mr. Fuggle, would not be fulfilled.

"While this failure of reeve and council is no surprise to me, it nevertheless was the direct cause of the amalgamation resulting in much poorer value for our general municipal tax dollar," said the letter.

"The attempt to combine an unwarranted and unnecessary sewer petition with a request to some property-owners asking them to agree with proposed property changes, was unsatisfactorily explained by Mayor Ray Bryant," said the letter.

OTHERS COMPLAIN

Similar complaints have been made by several other Panhandle residents.

Mayor Bryant said the letter was self-contradictory, as Mr. Fuggle apparently said he was in favor of sewers, but later said the sewer petition was unnecessary.

After the meeting the mayor said a Panhandle sewer petition which failed to gain the required number of signatures early this year had not been signed by Mr. Fuggle, but had been signed by his wife.

At a public hearing June 2, statements had been made about a salesman who approached women in the block bounded by Carrie, Colville and Phoenix.

He was said to have told the women that unless they would agree to sell their property, it would be expropriated by the municipality.

The public hearing was on the reopening of the block for apartment buildings.

Planning, zoning and housing subcommittee chairman Ald. Roy Elphick said after the meeting he still was not satisfied with the answer.

It seemed that the Real Estate Board had not been in touch with all the women who had been approached, and he said he hoped statements would be obtained from them.

GORGE PARK

Because "vagaries of municipal politics makes them nervous," the Kinsmen Club asked in a letter that the council sign a written agreement on the operation of a Gorge Park concession building.

So far the concession has been operated on a verbal agreement, and the Kinsmen said they wanted the present terms incorporated in the written statement.

Although Ald. Walter Lock said he could see no reason for nervousness, it was agreed to refer the matter to the parks and playground committee.

OFFICIAL PLAN

An official community plan bylaw was adopted, ruling that Macaulay Point lands should be used for recreational purposes only.

Mayor Bryant said the land was being turned over to the municipality by the defence department.

Pedestrian Hurt

A Langford boy was in critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital Monday night after being involved in an accident with a car while walking along Goldstream Avenue at Leigh Road.

Greg Taylor, 14, of 840 Attree Road, was admitted with severe head injuries.

Colwood RCMP said he was apparently walking along the road with a friend, Dudley Stearns, 2812 Rodney, when the accident occurred.

Police identified the driver of the car as Derk Jan Albers, 824 Orono.
